What Ails the Unions? Worry for Foreigners American Iron Bench and Politics

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

These are not cheerful days for union labor. The packing house workers in Chicago went on strike. Once that would have meant a long struggle, and probable victory for the strikers. Now their leader advises them to call off the strike absolutely, and get back their jobs if they can.

IF THEY CAN, is the unpleasant word. Doubtless the employers will realize that it is wise to be generous in victory, unwise to add more than is necessary to bitter discontent.

Union labor, reviewing repeated defeats that unionism has suffered since the war, should do some hard thinking.

When a business man finds things going wrong, he takes an inventory of his goods and of himself.

Union labor should take stock, examine itself, its leadership, and find what is wrong.

This is not said in criticism, but by a friend.

The present tendency and intention of capital and government apparently is to break down the power of unions, destroy them if possible and put labor back to the old "take what you get or starve" basis—tempered by the employer's generosity or sense of caution.

Nothing could be more dangerous than to destroy unions, which are as necessary as capital in giving balance and stability to industry.

But the majority of employers don't know that. And the unpleasant experiences that may come to the employers later will not help wives and children of men that find themselves out of work or irregularly employed today.

The Funding Bill, for foreign debt, rushes through the Senate. As the bill dealing with billions goes through, an amendment that would attach to it a bonus for soldiers is knocked on the head and killed.

How touching to see government so solicitous about the welfare of foreign countries, worrying about their ability to pay what they borrowed, while the same government is not in the least worried about American soldiers that were taken from their homes and their jobs.

You remember when soldiers were marching away, Liberty Bonds were being sold and the patriotic tom-tom was being hammered. What a change since then!

A tube is to be built under the Hudson connecting New York and New Jersey. It will be made of huge cast iron sections big enough for automobiles to run through. And this is the good point: Contractors will not be allowed to use any iron not made in the United States.

Let those that love all the world as much as the United States, or a little better, growl if they like. But that's a first-class rule.

What is done, spent and used in America should first of all give work to those that LIVE in America and profit to those that DO BUSINESS in America.

Fools may prefer to buy their fancy clothing abroad, but States, cities and the national government at least should set the example, buying at home.

What a father does for his children government should do for its citizens, and first of all it should protect them and promote their prosperity.

A telegram from Selbold, in Washington, to Frank Munsey's newspapers says that Senator Kenyon, retiring from the Senate to the bench, enters the race for the Presidency.

Mr. Hughes jumped from the highest bench, almost into the presidency, not quite. But an important judgeship is the worst possible start in a presidential campaign. A judge should have his mind on the law, made by the people—with perhaps a little assistance from corporations. He should not be campaigning and judging at the same time.

Judge Rosenwald selected as his motto the Ingersoll statement, "I would rather be a beggar and spend my money like a king than be a king and spend my money like a beggar."

Many write that it was originally Ingersoll's. So it was, and Mr. Rosenwald said so when he sent it to the paper that printed it. It is a good motto, none the less, and, thanks to Mr. Rosenwald having picked it out, it has been reprinted in several millions of newspapers.

$7,000,000 WILLED TO CITY

HUGE FUND LEFT BY WHITE TO BOSTON

Income to Be Used to Create Works of Public Utility and Beauty for People

A fund, estimated at nearly $7,000,000, the income of which is to be used to create "works of public utility and beauty for the use and enjoyment of the inhabitants," is left to the city of Boston in the will of George R. White, art patron and philanthropist, filed today in the Suffolk Probate Court.

Mr. White, for many years the largest individual taxpayer in the city, owned real estate valued at more than $7,500,000.

His bequests of more than $500,000 in public and private bequests and then directs that the residue go to the city, to be known as the George Robert White Fund.

Mr. White, who had in his life given large sums for charity and other public purposes, was a bachelor. He died recently at No. 255 Commonwealth avenue.

No part of the income of the White fund is to be used for religious, political or educational objects. The trustees are to be the Mayor, president of the City Council, the City Auditor, the president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the president of the Bar Association of the city of Boston.

SUGGESTS FORUM.

The trustees are required to make a detailed yearly report on the status of the fund in the newspapers.

A large part of the fund is in real estate, which Mr. White advises be not sold for at least 100 years. It is in the Washington, Boylston and Tremont street district and to ex-

EIGHTEEN DEAD IN PENNSYLVANIA MINE

Brownsville, Pa., Feb. 2.—Eighteen bodies had been recovered shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon from the Gates mine of the H. C. Frick Coke Co. at Gates, Pa., where an explosion occurred early today. Eight other miners, all believed dead, are still in the mine. There were 50 miners in the mine, but a late check-up shows that twenty-four escaped by climbing a 250-foot mine shaft.

Sam Brown, former Boston Braves baseball idol, was the first rescuer to enter the mine today.

LANDRU, "BLUEBEARD," TO BE GUILLOTINED

Paris, Feb. 2.—The appeal of Henri Landru, so-called "French Bluebeard," who was found guilty of murdering ten women and a boy, was rejected by the court today. Landru will be guillotined. BURRELL IS SUED FOR $100,000

Stat Suit for $1,500,000 Is Also Reported Filed Against Max Mitchell

Writs seeking $1,500,000 from Max Mitchell, former president of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company, and $100,000 from Fred J. Burrell, former State Treasurer, are understood to have been filed in Suffolk Superior Court by Bank Commissioner Joseph L. Allen.

The writs are returnable March 6.

It is understood that the writs in this new action concerning affairs of the closed trust company, were prepared several months ago, but were delayed pending the inquiry recently conducted by special sitting of the Grand Jury called at the instance of the Attorney-General's department. This Grand Jury action resulted in the indictment of Max Mitchell.

Those against Burrell are reported to grow out of the mysterious disappearance of notes signed by him and one part of the assets of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company.

WILSON TO JOIN NEW LAW AND ORDER MOVE

A new organization for law and order enforcement is to be started in Boston, according to the Rev. Charles L. Page of Dudley Street Baptist Church.

Former Prohibition Agent Harold D. Wilson will be a member of the executive committee. The organization plans to run a candidate against Senator Henry Cabot Lodge.

Mr. Page said today:

"We must have the laws enforced, no matter who is being hit.

"Some of us feel keenly the way petit laws are being twisted to suit special offenders.

"What we want is the enforcement of the prohibition law without respect to persons."

CIGARETTE STARTS FIRE IN NAVY YARD OFFICE

A fire in the top floor of the Administration Building at the Charlestown navy yard, in which eRar Admiral Hugh A. Wiley and his staff have offices, caused a half-hour of excitement today and sent clerks and civilian employes pouring out of the building. The blaze, believed to have been caused by a discarded cigarette, was extinguished after one hose had been ripped up. Rear Admiral Wiley was at lunch at the time and missed the excitement. The damage was small.

ROBBER MISSES $40, TAKES ROLL OF PAPER

Pittsfield, Mass., Feb. 2.—Warren Maxfield of Bridgeport, Ct., conductor on the New Haven Railroad, was held up at the point of a revolver and robbed of a gold watch valued at $75 at State Line, eleven miles west of this city. The robber took a roll of paper, which he evidently believed was money, from Maxfield's pocket, but missed $40 in bills in another pocket. The robber escaped in the darkness.

Dickerman's Burning Letters Again Draw Women to Trial at Cambridge

More burning love letters were read today at the resumption of the $100,000 suit of Mrs. Eugenie E. Dickerman, of Somerville, against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Minnie L. Dickerman, for alleged alienation of the affections of her husband, Robert Eliot Dickerman, in the East Cambridge superior court today.

The courtroom was filled with women, old and young, who hung upon the ardent words of the twenty-seven-year-old husband who told of his undying love for his middle-aged bride.

One elderly woman, well dressed, was found wandering about the hall outside the room, inquiring her way to the court where "the Dickerman case was being tried. I left my housework for that," she said. "I don't want to miss any of those love letters."

The trial had been halted by the illness of Judge Stanley Qua of Lowell last week. When it was reopened today Mrs. Eugenie Dickerman appeared, ready to take the stand again. She was dressed in a blue velvet dress, with long sweeping lines, and trimmed with opossum fur. Her hat, also of blue velvet, was trimmed with the same fur, and her feet were shod with chic walking boots.

Her attorney, Alvah L. Stinson, immediately began again the reading of the love letters written by Dickerman to his wife, both before and after their marriage.

"Gene, my dearest love," one of the first to be read, began. "The past two days have been simply terrible without word from you. I tried to forget and went out with a friend, another fellow, but did not do much as it was too hot." That letter closed with the words, "Good night, my precious, my own beatest love."

Another letter which began by saying he was glad to have heard she was enjoying herself in Paris continued:

"You seem to know some one in every town and city on this earth. Some doll! Yes, my darling love, the nights are long and dreadfully dreary without you. You poor darling child! How I wish I could be there to console you."

"I am so sorry," he wrote in another letter, "that you tore your pretty dress. But never mind, old Sweetest, it's not the clothes I love, but you, you, always you."

The last letter closed with the state

Rhode Island Factories Are Closed as Result of Strikes Over Reduction

A general wage reduction of 20 per cent. in the entire cotton manufacturing industry in New England was indicated today when mills in Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire posted notices of cuts to take effect Monday.

Many Rhode Island mills are closed as the result of strikes following a similar reduction already made.

Other mills in New England were expected to follow the lead of those which acted today, so that by Monday many thousands of operatives in more than a score of cities will be asked to work at four-fifths of the wage now paid.

The attitude of the unions in textile cities will be decided at a number of meetings that will be held between now and Monday. The question whether to accept the cut or to strike will be put up to the operatives by the union officials.

AMOSKEAG CUTS PAY.

A wage reduction of 20 per cent. and an increase in working hours from forty-eight to fifty-four per week was posted today in the Amoskeag and

Notice to the same effect was posted today at the Nashua Manufacturing Company and Jackson mills at Nashua, Cocheco Mills in Dover, Great Falls in Somersworth, and the mills at Suncook, Newmarket and Salmon Falls.

The same cut, it is understood, will eventually affect most of the Massachusetts mills except those in Lawrence, and all of Maine.

W. Parker Straw, agent of the Amoskeag Mills, says the action is necessary to meet the competition of Southern mills. If the cut is accepted the Amoskeag Company "now hopes for several months at least of continuous operation."

A meeting of the textile council of the United Textile Workers of America will be held at Manchester to consider the situation." Union officials say the textile employes in Manchester are about 90 per cent. organized.

ACTION IN LEWISTON.

A wage reduction of 20 per cent. was announced today in all Lewiston textile mills." An accompanying statement says: "This is absolutely necessary if we are to continue to operate."

About 17,000 employes are affected in the following Lewiston, Me., plants: Bates Manufacturing Company, Androscoggin Mills, Hill Manufacturing Company, Continental Mills, The W. S. Libbey Company, Lewiston Bleachery & Dye Works, and Cowan Woolen Company. The Barker Mill in Auburn is also affected. All are cotton manufacturing with the exception of the Cowan Woolen Mill and the Lewiston Bleachery & Finishing plant.

At Ware, the Otis Company, cotton textile manufacturers, today posted notice of a general wage reduction to take effect February 13. The number of employes affected is about 1,700.

At Chicopee Falls the mills of the Dwight Manufacturing Company have announced a cut of 20 per cent., affecting 2,000 employes, effective February 20.

At Augusta the Edwards Manufacturing Company posted notices in its cotton mill today, announcing a general reduction of 20 per cent. in wages, beginning February 13. The mill employs 430.

At Brunswick, Maine, notices that a wage reduction will take effect February 13 were posted in the Cabot cotton mills today. The amount of the cut for the 1,500 employes was not given, but it was stated it was in line with reductions in other cotton mills in New England.

At Lowell the Hamilton Manufacturing Company alone today had announced a 20 per cent. wage reduction, but in the past the cotton mills of that city have almost invariably acted together.

The Hamilton mills employ 1,800 persons. In the seven mills of the city there are 25,000 workers.

The reduction of 20 per cent. is the largest single cut made in New England textile mills in twenty-five years.

Reductions announced today affect 3,000,000 spindles. In Rhode Island 1,500,000 spindles are hit by the cut already in effect. The cotton mill industry of New England is 15,000,000 spindles.

List of New England Mills in Which Wages Are Cut

For New Hampshire: Amoskeag Manufacturing, Nashua, Jackson Co., the Cocheco division of Pacific Mills, Great Falls, Suncook, Newmarket and Salmon Falls.

GOVERNOR ACTS TO HALT R. I. MILL STRIKE

Troops May Be Called to Prevent Disturbances at Textile Plants

Providence, Feb. 2. — Governor Emery J. San Souci has stepped in to prevent the threatened State-wide strike of textile workers.

Following the issuance of an ultimatum by the United Textile Workers of America that unless a 20 per cent. wage cut put into effect a week ago is rescinded by Sunday the strike would be called, the Governor ordered Christopher M. Dunn, Assistant State Commissioner of Labor, to make an immediate investigation and report to him.

Dunn will interview both mill owners and operatives.

Governor San Souci also held a conference with Colonel Cyril L. D. Wilk, commanding officer of the Coast Artillery here and senior officer of the Rhode Island National Guard, but refused to say whether or not he contemplated calling out the National Guard to prevent disturbances.

Eighteen cotton cloth mills in the Pawtuxet Valley are closed as the result of the wage cut, 10,000 operatives being idle.

The six mills of the Knight Company which are closed are the Pontiac, Natick, Royal, Valley Queen, Arctic and Centreville. The Natick and Royal mills employ some 1,500, while the others have about 1,500 persons between them.

The rioting which broke out among the workers at the Natick mill has started public officials preparing for eventualities.

Thomas F. McMahon, international president of the United Textile Workers of America, announced that Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, had guaranteed the support of the A. F. of L. of the Rhode Island strikers if the wage cut is not rescinded and they go on strike.

John Powers of Pawtucket, a member of the executive board of the U. T. W. of A., is making arrangements for the State-wide strike. A meeting of the Rhode Island State Council will be held next Saturday afternoon, at which final orders will be issued for the protest strike, unless the corporation manufacturers revoke their wage cut by that time.

But the manufacturers seem as determined to fight as the unions. G. Edward Buton, vice-president and R. B. Knight Company, in an interview with a Boston American reporter said his company cannot operate, unless wages are cut 20 per cent.

DOCTOR ROBBED OF $77,300 BY GUNMEN

Five Bandits in Car With Massachusetts Number Slug Hartford Physician

Police of Massachusetts cities today began a State-wide search for five bandits who held up Dr. Ely Morgan in his office at No. 245 Trumbull street, Hartford, Ct., and escaped in an auto bearing a Massachusetts number plate, after robbing him of $77,300 in bonds and cash.

Detectives of the Connecticut city declared today they have evidence that the men went to Hartford from Springfield, and special efforts are being made to locate them there.

The only clew the police admit having are the descriptions of the two men who committed the actual holdup, and of the car.

Dr. Morgan was alone in his office, after attending to some patients, when two men, apparently about twenty-three and thirty years old, respectively, entered and asked for medicine.

The stuff they wanted was not on hand in the office and the physician left the men to go to a nearby drug store for it.

On his return he found the door of the office closed. As he opened it one of the men struck him across the head, felling him to the floor.

Then both of the robbers leaped upon him, and took from his pockets $2,300 in cash he was carrying in a large billfolder.

The robbers then fled, leaving the doctor to scramble to his feet as soon as he was able. He reached the window in time to see the pair jump into a large gray automobile, containing three other men, from which immediately dashed down the street and disappeared round the nearest corner.

Later, the doctor discovered that $75,000 in bonds, which he had in his desk, had been taken by the robbers during his absence at the drug store.

James M. Curley, on assuming office as Mayor, had been expected to remove them if he had found them still at City Hall. Their resignations, to take effect Monday, remove them from Curley's power. On the stump Curley promised to oust Lawler "five minutes after he took office."

Love Letters Revealed In Dickerman Case

Letters written by Robert Eliot Dickerman to his wife, who is suing his mother, Mrs. Minnie L. Dickerman, for alienation of the young husband's affections, told in affectionate terms of regret over their separation. In one of them the husband said he would deny they were married if he were questioned.

"Gene, My Darling Love:

"I haven't received any word from my sweetheart for four days. I hope she is not ill agrin, or is she giving me some of my own medicine. But the past week, old dear, I have written to you quite frequently, I believe.

"I hope you had no mishaps on your ride with Dad and his wife. I just pray for a word from my darling girl tomorrow and am sure I shall not be disappointed.

"I long for you and want you so, my own love, and shall have you many days now.

"Last evening four of us went over to an Austrian's house and had a gallon of home-made wine. It wasn't bad and gave us a small thrill. It reminded me of sitting in a small cafe in France.

"Sorry this is such a stupid letter, but is merely to say hello and let you know that I think of you every minute and love you dearly all the time and forever. Heaps of love and kisses.

"Your own loving BOBBIE."

Tells of Sending Money to Wife

"Gene, my Own Darling:

"Your dear long letter of the 27th came Friday. I hope by now you have received my letter with the $30.

"That sure was a good joke on you, sending Fay's letter to me. I know, my love, that you love and think of me a great deal. You certainly are the most lovable and wonderful dear in the world.

"I know my love shall never lose her beautiful smile, and that counts a lot, you know. The name they gave you certainly fits you to a T in more ways than one, s'eat es pas, ma chaire?

"I am so glad you are receiving nice invitations out. The diversions will help greatly to pass the time away, which will not be long, old dear, until we shal both be in heaven, and oh! so happy!

"You are right, old sweet, when we get home we will have to pay for only one room, and it is pretty hard at present to scrape along on what I am getting, but we will do the best we can, old dear. There isn't any more news, old sweetheart.

"Patiently and eagerly looking forward to the day of our meeting again, and with heaps of love and kisses, I am always and forever your loving husband. BOBBIE."

A "Regular Guy," He Says of Friend

"Gene, My Dearest Love:

"I received a letter from Jimmy's darling mother, sent to my mother, in which it said Jimmy's wife was leaving him, that she had been a poor wife to him the past two years. Jimmy's lawyer says there are many such cases before lawyers nowadays. So you see, old dear, I guess it is not all Jimmy's fault, even if he is quite a rounder. I know he drinks a lot and raises hades, but I am crazy about him and he is my idea of a regular 'guy.'

"I hope you are having a lovely time, sweet dear, and know you are with such lovely people who care so much for you. I can't blame them myself. I am so glad for you, dear heart. Good night, my bestest love. Always wanting and loving you. Your ever loving and devoted hubby. BOBBIE."

"I Feel Awfully Sorry for You"

"Gene, My Love:

"My darling love, the nights sure are lonely and they are slowly growing colder, but we will soon be together and then just think how happy we will be after one long wait and separation. You poor darling child, I feel awfully sorry for you and your fall. I wish I were there to console you. Please, my love, be careful. It was a shame you tore your beautiful new dress. But never mind, old sweet, it isn't the clothes I love, it's you. You look good in anything, old dear. Good night, my dearest love. Wanting and loving you every minute.

"Your devoted and loving BOBBIE."

To Deny Marriage If Questioned

"Gene, My Darling Love:

"A Very Happy New Year to you my dear—would to God we could have been together today.

"I don't think I shall tell a soul about our marriage and won't mention it to the folks unless they bring it up and then shall deny it unless I find they know too much.

"Do not worry, my dearest love. If the storm breaks, nothing they say or do will ever take or keep me from you, my adorable blessed.

"I love you more than life itself and can't live without you and won't—that is all. You are my salvation and only comfort I have in the world.

"I really haven't any more to say, dearest mine. Oh, how I miss you and want you dear heart—to say nothing of how much I love you dear. Oceans and oceans of love and kisses. Always and forever your loving and dearest boy.

"BOBBIE."

Love Causing Him to Lose His Sleep

"Gene, Dearest Love:

"Yours of November 8th arrived this afternoon and I was surprised to receive it as I got one Saturday.

"I went to the movies today to see Douglas Fairbanks. He sure did some stunts and it was a great picture. He seems to get worse every day.

"Last evening I read some reports until quite late and as it was warm and muggy, I didn't get to sleep until 4 a. m. and I lay awake thinking of you, my blessed love.

"Tomorrow evening is the big Victory Ball at the armory given by the Elks and I expect it will mean a big party.

"I am very tired this evening and haven't much to say except the same old story that I wanted to chat with my dearest one and to let her know that her Sonny Boy thinks of her every minute and loves her dearly.

"I haven't heard any more yet as to when mother intends to come out here, if she is coming at all.

"There really isn't any more news to tell you, my love.

"Goodnight my darling. With heaps and heaps of love and kisses.

"BOBBIE."

pected to greatly increase in value.

In his will, Mr. White says:

"While I think Boston has now few superiors in beauty and the many privileges it affords its citizens, yet I believe it has greater possibilities for the future. There are several public blessings among those afforded other cities that we do not have, such as a forum of substantial proportions for great public gatherings. It is with these things in mind that I have established this fund."

The money, Mr. White counsels, should be used only for important civic improvements, although he realizes there will be great pressure for its use for small needs.

OTHER BEQUESTS.

The will was drawn December 13, 1919. It names as executors Mrs. Harriet Bradbury, a sister; Charles L. Hamilton, business associate, and the First National Bank of Boston.

Among the bequests are:

Boston Museum of Fine Arts, $100,000; Massachusetts General Hospital, $100,000 for a ward for women and children and $100,000 for a department for the treatment of skin diseases; Children's Hospital, $100,000; City of Boston, $50,000 for the erection on the Common or Public Garden of a work of art inscribed with the name of the testator; town of Acton, $25,000 for a fund in memory of his mother, Elizabeth, the income to relieve the needs of the worthy poor.

Mr. White began life as an office boy for Weeks & Potter and rose to be president of the Potter Drug & Chemical Corporation. All the employes of the corporation are remembered in his will.

Those who have been with the corporation a year are given $100 and the others $100 for each year they have been with it. Charles L. Hamilton of the corporation is given $25,000.

Viola Rollins and Adelaide Gallagher are given $5,000 each. Mrs. Margaret A. Allston, widow of Philip J. Allston, the latter a former employe, is bequeathed $2,250, as is Nellie Kelley of Attleboro, a servant.

LIQUOR CASE DROPPED BECAUSE OF PERJURY

Springfield, Feb. 2.—Special Officer Ernest P. Sealander was barred from testifying in a liquor case in District Court by Judge Wallace R. Heady because of admitted perjury in a hearing last week. The case in which Sealander was to have testified for the Commonwealth was dismissed upon motion of Prosecutor John J. Madden. The defendant, Thomas J. Burke, saloonkeeper, was found not guilty of liquor keeping and selling when evidence showed a police spotter had taken liquor with him to Burke's place.

Because of Sealander's perjury in the hearings against Patrolman Walter C. Eaton charges against that officer were dropped and he was returned to duty.

SACRED COLLEGE IN SESSION TO ELECT POPE

Prelate Leaves For Naples to Meet Cardinal O'Connell; May Be Late to Vote

Rome, Feb. 2.—(By the Associated Press.)—The conclave of the Sacred College to choose a successor to Pope Benedict XV. began its sittings today. The fifty-two cardinals who are in Rome went into seclusion last night and when the great oak barrier at the entrance of the courtyard of St. Damaso was closed they were cut off from communication with the outside world until their task was done.

The balloting is not expected to consume more than two days, and the next Pope, in the consensus of opinion in Vatican circles, will come from among the moderate section of the Sacred College. Neither the "irreconcilables," nor the "peace party," which favors closer relations with the Italian government, is understood to have a chance to elect its candidate, the moderates holding the balance of power.

It is not believed that a ballot will be taken before Friday.

A photographer who contrived to gain entrance to the chapel was ejected, taken to the commissariat of the Vatican and expelled from the premises.

THRONG AWAITS NEWS.

Crowds gathered today in St. Peter's square to watch for the tell-tale smoke wreaths from the chimney of the Sistine Chapel, where the conclave sits. A ballot is taken on the morning and evening of each day the conclave is in session, and these smoke puffs are the only indication to the watchers as to the progress made.

When no election is effected a little straw is burned with the voting papers, causing the smoke to assume a dark color. When a choice is finally made the ballots, burning alone, emit a thin wisp of light smoke.

Until the election is effected the only communication between the approximately 250 persons in the Vatican and the outside is through the "ruta" or turning box at the entrance of the courtyard, and such communications are made in this way are not allowed to come to the attention of the cardinals. Penalty for violation of this secrecy is excommunication.

GOES TO MEET O'CONNELL.

Monsignor Mahoney, spiritual director of the American College, has gone to Naples to meet Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, who is a passenger on the steamship Presidents Wilson, which steamship officials here say, is not due until Saturday. As in 1914, when Pope Benedict was elected, Cardinal O'Connell may arrive in Rome too late to participate in the conclave.

The confidence that the conclave would be of short duration is shared by Cardinal Gasparri, who, in making provisions yesterday for the maintenance of the cardinals, only provided menus for today, tomorrow and Saturday.

As the conclave convened it appeared that the "irreconcilables," headed by Merry Del Val, and the "peace party," under Gasparri, could each count on about twenty votes, the remaining twelve constituting the moderate section.

Others who believed the election would be brief pointed out that the Cardinals generally were in favor of a continuation of the late Pontiff's policy, and that there was therefore nothing to do but choose a man who would follow that program.

PREDICT 'HUNG' JURY AGAIN FOR ARBUCKLE

Not a word has leaked out of the jury room regarding the ballots which have been in progress there since 2:44 yesterday afternoon.

In the first trial fairly authentic information came by some "grapevine" channel from the jury room, but only vague rumors were afloat today as to the standing of the jury.

Henry Ottenberg, the alternate juror, who was discharged when the twelve original jurors returned, expressed the belief that the count was ten to two for acquittal. This seemed to be the prevailing belief, although Assistant District Attorney Leo Friedman was inclined to believe the division was more equal.

Twice Ottenberg has come to the court room from the jury room. The first time the testimony of Josephine Keas, hotel chambermaid, was read to them. The second time, they asked Judge Louderback to re-read his entire instructions. Attorneys said this was the first time to their knowledge a jury has ever asked for the court's full instructions to be regiven.

Following the reading of these instructions a second time, the jury retired and took another ballot with no result. Judge Louderback then ordered them locked up for the night.

A disagreement will mean a third trial, defence attorneys said. The failure of the jury to bring a quick verdict of acquittal was a stunning blow to Arbuckle and his attorneys. So confident were they of the outcome that Gavin McNab submitted the case to the jury without argument.

ATTEMPTED TO THROTTLE AMERICAN TRADE WITH MEXICAN FIRMS

PLOT OF OIL INTERESTS FOILED

By Universal Service.

Washington, F'eb. 2.—How the oil interests worked in mysterious ways their blunders to perform over Mexico has been revealed by Universal Service.

How they failed also when they tried spot propaganda, through publicity aimed to discourage legitimate American business with prospects in Mexico under the Obregon administration is shown in further official records on file here.

Universal Service is familiar with and will reveal fully a sinister plan of the oil interests for their defense in fomenting attacks on the government of Alvaro Obregon, President of Mexico. It is known that representatives of paramount oil and banking groups have visited Washington within the last ten days.

These visits involved discussions of means to block the proposed congressional inquiry provided for in the resolution sponsored by Representative Tom Connally of Texas.

Representative Connally has made a formal demand on Representative Campbell, chairman of the Rules Committee, for a preliminary hearing at which he can show that an investigation is justified. In reply to this demand Representative Campbell requested that he be given sufficient time to consult with the State Department.

NOW SEEKING DEFENDER.

It is no secret that the interests have been instrumental in conducting a frantic canvass of both the House and Senate to find someone who will serve the purpose of defending on the floor of both legislative branches persons whose machinations have bilarced the administration in an unpleasant position.

The failure of the publicity propaganda intended to discourage legitimate American business in Mexico was captured by the Universal Service kicking out of Mexico of W. F. Buckley.

Information on file here reveals how Buckley, a former leading light in the affairs of the National Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico, splits with that organization. He launched a bitter attack in a letter released a year ago by the National Association. The letter was signed by Buckley and two other members of the provisional executive committee of the American Association.

The American Association also sent a letter to the chambers of commerce of the principal Western cities and Western American cities. It reads in part:

ATTACKED TRADE TRIPS.

"It is the opinion of this organization that trade excursions to Mexico at the present time (March 1, 1921), are premature and tend to complicate the situation.

"We believe that the arguments in this connection set forth in our letter to the chambers of commerce are worthy of the attention of American business men who may contemplate visiting Mexico."

The letter referred to contained the stock arguments of the oil interests against recognition of the Obregon government. It employs about 1,500 words in attacking the Mexican Constitution of 1917 as not being sufficiently liberal to American oil interests.

Following is a sample of the sort of reply the oil propagandists received by telegram from the foreign trade bureau of the New Orleans Association of Commerce:

"Your circular letter relative to our trip to Mexico is received. As an American citizen deeply interested in the economic life of Mexico and believing myself well informed and acquainted with all circumstances, I (A. E. Padillo, head of the bureau) protest your instituting Mexican government in putting influence and money back of trade trip for political reasons.

"New Orleans trip to Mexico was started and developed by ourselves. Invitation Mexican government to visit their country received later and accepted by us in spite of what it was intended. Going to Mexico to investigate and reach our own conclusions."

LADY ASQUITH, WHO ARRIVED IN BOSTON TODAY

MARGOT ASQUITH.

Famous author, wife of former British premier, here to lecture. She says New Yorkers who heckled her were merely "interesting."

WARMEST FEB. 2 IN BOSTON SINCE 1877

Temperature Goes to 53 Degrees and Humidity Also Is Abnormally High

The official Weather Bureau thermometer mounted to 53 degrees above zero at 10 a. m. today, the first time that the mercury has registered that height in Boston on this date since 1877.

It is the second time that Forecaster Smith's thermometer has gone above 50 degrees on February 2 since the local station was established in 1873. The humidity reached 92 per cent., which is abnormally high. The heat and the humidity combined to give Boston a February "dog day" on Groundhog Day.

Rain and snow are falling from the Lakes to the Atlantic today and mild weather prevails throughout the country covered by the storm. In the Northwest cold weather prevails, many places recording minus zero temperatures.

At sea a southwest gale is blowing from the Delaware breakwater to Eastport, Me., but it is not unusually severe.

Forecaster Smith predicted that the weather would clear today, and the mercury drop to about 30 degrees tomorrow.

MARGOT ASQUITH HERE WITH HER CIGARETTES

Without them the celebrated author of the diary which turned social and official England upside down and gave the world a glimpse behind the veil would be a good deal at a loss.

At any rate, she puffed one of them continually, except when speaking, and seemed to miss it then.

Mrs. Asquith does not believe women in politics have succeeful. "Ladies," she declared, "do not go into politics." Shortly before she dodged a question relating to the world fame of Lady Astor, who was Miss Nancy Langhorne of Virginia, and is now a member of the House of Commons.

A little later she intimated that, according to her view of the matter, "there is not a woman member of the British Parliament who amounts to much."

NO LADY IN POLITICS.

But while she intimated that ladies should not go into politics, Mrs. Asquith believes firmly that labor women should "stand" for Parliament. She has profound respect and admiration for Margaret Bromfield, one of the women leaders of the British Labor party.

Mrs. Asquith appeared to be bored with American reporters and things like that.

Asked what she thought of the American newspaper man, she puffed for a second at her cigarette and then admitted that they appeared "quite extraordinary, don't you think?"

When the question was pressed, she admitted further that "they are tremendously interesting." Speaking thusly, she raised one eyebrow ironically.

NEVER HEARD OF KANSAS.

Her lecture this evening will be the second of a series she is to deliver on a tour of the United States. From Boston she goes to Washington to spend several days with her son-in-law, Prince Bibesco, Rumanian Minister to Washington, and her daughter, Princess Bibesco.

She confessed she expected to gain quite a lot of useful and tersely interesting information while in this country.

Kansas, even as a name, is totall unknown to her, and when she was told to be careful about taking cigarettes into that State, she said:

"Kansas, Kansas—what is that?"

She did not think the women who heckled her at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, were rude, but they were "tremendously interesting." Her lecture in New York was her first in this country.

"It is my belief that the discourtesy which marked my first appearance in America came from the fashionable ladies in the orchestra seats. They were bored; that is all."

COLLINS URGES ULSTER TO FREE SINN FEINERS

At Conference With Craig Takes Up Case of Three Sentenced to Die

Dublin, Feb. 2 (by the Associated Press).—Several important questions were taken up by Michael Collins, head of the provisional government, and Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, at their meeting here today.

Probably the most urgent was the fate of three Sinn Fein prisoners under sentence of death in Londonderry jail. Had they been confined in Southern Ireland these men would have been released under the Anglo-Irish treaty's workings, but Londonderry is within the Ulster jurisdiction.

The execution of the men has been fixed for February 8 and the scaffold is being erected in the prison. Premier Craig was to be asked to stop the executions.

Londonderry is one of the towns where, in the opinion of Southern Ireland, the tenure of the Northern Parliament cannot be prolonged. It has a Nationalist majority in the City Council and a Nationalist Mayor, while a considerable number, even of the Unionists, feel that its business prospects would be harmed if it were kept under the Northern Parliament and thus separated from Donegal, of which it is the real capital.

It was expected the boundary questions also would be discussed during the interview. It seems to be the feeling here that if North Ireland is to stay out of a united Irish Parliament it must give its assent to some rearrangement of the boundaries that will leave to Southern Ireland certain blocks of northern territory inhabited mainly by a population which refuses obedience to the Northern government, that government receiving in exchange some bits of Ulster now included in Southern Ireland where there is a considerable Unionist population.

Belfast Newspaper Man Under Arrest

Belfast, Feb. 2.—Michael Tobin, Belfast correspondent for the Dublin Freeman's Journal, was arrested today by officers of the Irish Republican army in Westport, County Mayo, and is detained in a local barracks for reporting a sermon by Archbishop Gilmartin denouncing the recent outrages in Belfast.

Tobin, who is prominent as a newspaper man, has been ordered sent to Dublin.

2,800 to Attend Irish League Convention

Dublin, Feb. 2.—(By the Associated Press).—Delegates to the number of 2,800 will attend Tuesday's extraordinary and first annual convention of the Gaelic League of Ireland, according to Sinn Fein headquarters.

Resolutions to be submitted include one from Eamon de Valera, pledging adherence to the Republic, and one from Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail Eireann, that the Anglo-Eois enjoy support the action of the Dail in approving the Anglo-Irish treaty.

MISS MORINI TO WED SUITOR AT MANSFIELD

Mansfield, Feb. 2.—Beautiful Pauline Morini, missing since Sunday, has been found.

She is with relatives of Larry Pietro, a former suitor, who disappeared twenty-four hours after the girl was last seen by her parents.

Pietro and Miss Morini are to be married as soon as the five days required by law elapse from last Monday, when they procured a marriage license.

So announced Chief of Police Thomas H. Nelson today, calmly adding he had seen the marriage license and was going to tell nobody where the girl is staying until the couple have time to wed.

"She is of age," said Chief Nelson, "and I think she knows what she is doing." He added he would not divulge her whereabouts even to her parents, for fear they would attempt to prevent the marriage.

Nelson's announcement brought to a close a search by towns in that part of the State that had been going on since Sunday night, when she left home in front of her home on North Main street in an automobile.

"Pietro was in the car," said Chief Nelson.

WOULD RESTRAIN SALE OF 500 STUFFED BIRDS

Winthrop B. Jones of Boston filed today in Superior Court a bill in equity to restrain the Boston Society of Natural History from disposing of what he calls "a rare and unusual collection of five hundred stuffed and mounted birds." He alleges the society agreed to sell the birds to him last October for $40, on the instalment plan, he to pay $5 down and the society to retain the birds until he found adequate quarters for the housing the collection and paid in full.

ALLEN FIGHTS INDICTMENT FOR THEFT

Parker Asks Permission to Retract Not Guilty Plea and Will Move to Quash

Attorney-General J. Weston Allen and his counsel, former Attorney-General Herbert Parker of Clinton, today began an attack upon the validity of an indictment of Allen by the Suffolk County Grand Jury on a charge of larceny.

The opening gun was fired in Suffolk Superior Court before Judge Fessenden. Attorney Parker asked the court to permit Allen to withdraw his plea of not guilty in order to substitute a plea in abatement, after which a motion to quash the indictment would be entered.

The motion to quash will be made on the grounds that the indictment was improperly obtained.

Judge Fessenden replied that if the motion to withdraw the not guilty plea was allowed it would leave the court without any record and require an immediate special hearing on the matter of quashing the indictment.

The court, he said, had not the time at its disposal to grant a special hearing today. He suggested that the plea of not guilty be allowed to stand until next Wednesday, when it can be withdrawn and a special hearing given to the attorney-general and his counsel. This was agreed to.

District Attorney Pelletier's office was represented by Assistant District Attorney Frederick M. J. Sheehan.

Attorney Parker indicated that he would claim undue influence was brought by District Attorney Pelletier's office upon the Grand Jury to obtain the indictment, and that improper influences were used to hamper a conscientious officer of the State in the performance of his duty.

The indictment against Attorney-General Allen charges that he withheld $150.48 from a client, Miss Nellie T. Beck, now Mrs. Charles Olsen of Nantasket, which he obtained in a lawsuit.

MELLON WOULD PAY SOLDIERS' BONUS BY TAX

Suggests Increased Postage and Tobacco Levies to Congressmen

By Associated Press.

Washington, Feb. 2.—The soldiers' bonus should be paid out of special taxes, such as increased first and second class postage and tobacco levies, Secretary Mellon declared today before the House ways and means committee.

Secretary Mellon reiterated his belief it would be impracticable to depend on the foreign debt for financing the proposed "five years" adjusted compensation plan because the revenue from that source is problematical.

These estimates of revenue from special sources were made by the secretary:

Increased second class postage, to wipe out deficits in that branch of the postoffice department, $30,000,000.

Increased cigarette tax, it is believed amounting to fifty cents on the thousand, $25,000,000.

Increased tobacco tax, two cents a pound, $5,000,000.

Increased documentary stamp taxes, $40,000,000.

A tax of two cents on each bank check, $30,000,000.

The total estimated return from these taxes was $300,000,000. Mr. Mellon said the bonus would cost $425,000,000 a year for the first two years, and told the committee it could extend the list of taxable sources to make up the deficiency. He made it clear that he was not "recommending" any of the taxes suggested.

The Treasury secretary opposed a general sales tax on the ground of the cost and difficulty of administration.

GOVERNMENT PLANS TO DEAL WITH COAL STRIKE

Washington, Feb. 2.—Plans of the government to cope with the situation which might arise in the event of a strike of coal miners when the present agreements expire at the end of next month are being worked out by the Department of Justice, it was indicated today by Attorney-General Daugherty.

Watching conditions in the coal industry as well as the proposed junction of the railroad workers with the mine workers to resist wage decreases, he said he was not yet ready to make known the government's policy.

Boston Woman Is Saving on Income of $500 a Year

PAULINE LORD.

Star of "Anna Christie" at top) whose needs, she says, demands all her big weekly pay! And Boston woman who has something left from her modest weekly stipend.

MISS S. AGNES DONHAM.

And Roxbury Mother Supports Seven on $19 a Week—Listen to This, Pauline Lord!

Could you start a bank account—say a dollar or two—on a salary of $500 a week?

If not, what is the absolute bedrock figure which would permit you to lay by a dollar a week, say, for a rainy day?

Pauline Lord, who gets half a thousand every Saturday night for playing the stellar role in "Anna Christie," says that her salary does not allow her to lay by a cent, and that she has no automobile, no jewelry, no fur coat—in fact, none of the usual accessories of the pretty young actress.

But her point of view differs radically from that of Mrs. Margaret Driscoll of Roxbury, who supports seven children on an income of $19 weekly, as well as from that of Carl Buttz, "The Modern Williams Tell," who lives with his young bride in comfort on $5 a week in his shack at North Taunton. Margery Smith of Wellesley, who declares it is possible to feed five persons on ten dollars every seven days, would laugh at Miss Lord's contention, as would Thomas Sims, chief of the Boston City Hospital, who says $5.75 a week is plenty to pay for table board of the best.

SAVES ON $500 YEARLY.

In fact, Miss Lord might be said to be in a minority, for figures of the local banks show that their savings depositors average far, far below $500 weekly in their incomes.

There is Miss S. Agnes Donham, the little Boston woman who on a budget of $400 annually, manages to have money left over to give a helping hand to persons worse off than she, and never fails to have something to spare for her church dues.

Miss Donham's budget reads: Rent, $91; food, $135; clothing, $96; coal, $22.50; wood, $5; o.l, $8; church, Red Cross and magazines, $18; papers, $8.10. This makes a total of $427.60 for the year.

All of this, however, does not alter the sad financial story told by the pretty star. That story leaked out when she appeared in the New York Supreme Court in supplementary proceedings on a $5,000 judgment obtained against her by Mrs. Nellie Roche, who won a suit for damages for the alienation of the affections of her husband, Billy Roche, referee of boxing bouts.

Mrs. Roche obtained her judgment seven years ago in California and later had it transferred to New York. Just as she was on the point of collecting in 1920, Miss Lord went through voluntary bankruptcy proceedings.

$5,000 NOT A LIABILITY.

Among the various debts the actress listed at that time was the judgment obtained by Mrs. Roche. Judge Hand in the federal court, however, told her that this could not be done, and that the judgment would have to be stricken off the schedule of liabilities.

Then Mrs. Roche began pressing hard to obtain the $5,000, and had Miss Lord haled to court.

On the witness stand the actress mournfully recounted her financial difficulties. It was true, she admitted, that she was getting a good salary, but there was a garnishee which deducted 10 per cent. each week.

Not in seven years had she ridden in her own automobile, she told the court, a real deprivation that nothing but a determination to rid herself of the devil of debt reconciled her to.

Her jewelry, of which in the good fat days of the past she had had plenty, was gone, and for five years she has had no bank account.

FORCED TO ECONOMY.

She did not explain how she managed to make both ends meet on the $500 a week pittance, but she did say that it needed careful economy and almost parsimonious guarding of every penny.

When Mrs. Roche's attorney attempted to obtain a garnishee he discovered that someone had been beforehand with him and that he would have to wait.

MRS. STEPHENS IS TO LIVE ON HUSBAND'S PAY

Arriving in Chicago hurriedly she transacted pressing business, reiterated her determination to live according to the means of her husband-to-be, in his humble cottage, and expressed her views on marriage.

"Happiness," she said, "is not a question of money. Money has nothing to do with my marriage, one way or another. We shall live very simply, in accordance with my husband's position, although we are not going to live in precisely the kind of a workingman's cottage described as typical. I expect to be very happy.

"The man I am to marry is older than his years. The experiences he has gone through broadened and developed him beyond his years. I have always been sympathetic with Russia and Russians. Its people, I think, have been stuck"—she groped for a word—"much good sports."

Her fiance is twenty-three years old and Mrs. Stephens is forty-five.

Mrs. Stephens said that Vonnatakoy-Vonsiatsky is heir to vast estates in Southern Russia which were confiscated by the Bolsheviki, and is from one of the oldest and wealthiest families of the old regime.

Mrs. Stephens Goes Shopping in New York

SWEARS BRIDE ENGINEERED WEDDING

Duffy Intoxicated When He Married Miss Mullane, Says Fitzgerald

Concord, N. H., Feb. 2.—William Duffy was intoxicated the night he married Julia Mullane, Thomas Fitzgerald testified today in Mrs. Julia Duffy's $25,000 heart balm suit against Thomas Mott Osborne for alleged alienation of her husband's affections.

The "whole proceedings," he said, referring to the marriage, were engineered by the woman.

Fitzgerald testified he had the license for Duffy's proposed wedding to Helen Healy to take place the following day when Julia Mullane said: "How do you think I'd do for a wife for Bill?"

"Would he be the 'candy kid,'" Fitzgerald said he answered.

Duffy was called to the house, Fitzgerald said, and he was given drinks of alcohol mixed with grape juice until he had been convinced he should marry Julia instead of Helen.

Fitzgerald said Duffy was the only man punished by Osborne for the affair.

George E. Healy, former clerk of the State Senate, father of the girl Duffy was supposed to marry, testified he was called to Portsmouth for the wedding.

He met Duffy on the night the latter married Miss Mullane and said Duffy appeared happy over the prospects of marrying Helen Healy the next day. They talked over the wedding plans, he declared. He did not know Duffy had married Miss Mullane that night until it was all over.

Judge Ernest L. Cuptil of Portsmouth conducted the cross-examination today. Fitzgerald, under cross-examination, asserted he had never talked the case over with Osborne.

ARGUMENT FREES 2 ON LIQUOR CHARGE

The argument of former Assistant U. S. Attorney Daniel A. Shea that you have a right to possess it and move it to transport it was to James T. O'Brien of Greenwood street, Dorchester, and John Smith of Boston today from the charges of unlawfully possessing and transporting one barrel of whiskey. They were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Hayes. According to evidence presented, the whiskey was obtained from the Eastern Drug Company on a fraudulent permit and loaded aboard a truck which never moved until prohibition agents arrested the men.

"JERRY THE RAT" IS HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Cornelius J. Moriarty of Church street, known in the underworld as "Jerry the Rat," and alleged to be one of the leaders of the illicit drug trade in New England, was held for the Federal Grand Jury today by Commissioner Hayes. Moriarty is charged with illegal sale of morphine. Bail was increased from $2,000 to $7,000 and Moriarty was given until tomorrow to raise the additional amount.

DEATH LIST IN MINE BLAST REACHES NINE

Gates, Pa., Feb. 2.—The bodies of nine miners, killed in an explosion in the Gates mine of the H. C. Frick Coke Company here today, had been brought to the surface as news from the entry, one and one-half miles from the foot of the shaft, where the accident occurred. Twenty men, it was stated, were still in the mine, and experienced miners, working feverishly to reach them, expressed the opinion that all were dead.

'PERSONALITY' CARDS RECORD B. U. STUDENTS

Filling Out Blanks Is Feature of Second Semester Opening Day

Getting an education is all card indexed now at the Boston University College of Liberal Arts.

Before a young man or young woman begins to study all the dotted lines on a "personality" card have to be filled in. Then a snapshot photograph of the student is pasted on the card. It's like a Rogues' Gallery, only no offense has been committed or is intended. It's just for reference.

Filling out the blanks was the principal event of registration day for the second semester at the college building on Boylston street. More than 600 students appeared. Many of them had not attended the first term and had no snapshots. A photographer was busy taking these photographs while the subjects "looked pleasant."

Old students assisted new students with all the paraphernalia that goes with registration. The recruits were taught how to fathom the "horarium," the bit of Greek that every Boston University student must become familiar with if his stay at Boston University lasts four years.

The personality card records the name, race and nationality, church affiliations, information about the support of the student, educational history and intentions and other facts about all those at the college.

400 RETAIL GROCERS AT ANNUAL DINNER

More than 400 of Boston's most progressive retail grocers made merry last evening at the forty-first annual dinner of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association held at Ford Hall. During the evening an enjoyable program was offered, consisting of dancing, songs and stories given by professional entertainers. The dinner committee in charge of the evening's program was E. M. GARLAND GIVES HIS 'CREED' TO PUBLIC

Neither "Free Love Nor Cast Iron Regulations," Is His Latest Idea

Charles Garland, millionaire seeker after poverty, has written his creed. He has done this, he says, because:

"Press reports have treated my situation with little understanding. They have treated it with little consideration either for those intimately concerned or for the public welfare."

Garland then gives his creed as follows:

"First, about money. I do not believe money in itself to be an evil. But the present excessive desire for material wealth is one of the greatest obstacles to human happiness. A society divided against itself cannot produce its best. It is divided by those who seek what must necessarily be had at the expense of others—at the expense of the whole. Let each man's gains be gains for his neighbor as well as for himself.

"Then about marriage. I do not advocate free love as it is generally understood. Nor do I advocate any cast iron regulations of marriage.

"I do my best to work out my own individual problems. I wish to impose my solutions upon none, as I respect the right of every man to solve his own problem in his own way. Likewise I respect the right of every woman."

Plays Garland Role in Refusing to Accept $1,000

Ludlow, Feb. 2.—John Franklin Smith, formerly of Becket, but now of Kentucky, has outGarlanded Charles Garland. For more than five years he has refused to accept bequests from the estate of his brother, Charles Melvill Smith.

He was left $1,000 and a diamond ring and his wife was willed $200 and a ring. They several times refused to accept the gifts. Then the executor sent them to Kentucky by registered mail. The Smiths returned them.

William P. Porter now asks the probate court to permit him to give the rejected legacies to Emma Louise Smith of Ludlow, a sister of the testator.

BANDITS HOLD UP PROVIDENCE RECTORY

Masked Pair Compel Priest to Open Safe; Escape With $58

Providence, Feb. 2.—Two masked bandits entered the rectory of the Church of the Assumption on Potter avenue, here, compelled Father John F. Haney to open the safe, and robbed the place of $58. Both men escaped.

The two came to the house late at night and rang the bell. The housekeeper responded and, thinking that it was a sick call, summoned Father Haney. When the priest came down he was confronted by two revolvers.

The men stepped into the hallway and ordered him to lead them to the room where the safe was located. When they reached the safe they compelled him to unlock the combination. Then one of them took the keys from his pocket and unlocked the inner door, scooping the money out into his pocket.

After ordering Father Haney not to make any outcry, the bandits retreated softly to the front door and escaped into the darkness.

Two other priests were in the rectory at the time, Rev. John F. Reardon and Rev. James S. O'Brien. Both were asleep upstairs when the robbery took place and were not awakened by the entrance of the marauders.

Father Haney was unable to furnish a very clear description of the men.

'On Again, Off Again' Tire on Auto of Lynnfield Man

Joseph Smith of Lowell street, Lynnfield Centre, fell back against the door of his garage with a gasp. Before his astounded eyes stood his automobile minus five new tires that had been a part of it the previous night.

He notified the police.

Today he was back again.

"S'all right," said Smith; "they're back again. DOMEONE if whoever took 'em didn't bring 'em back last night, 'n' even put 'em on."

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement.

CHECK PASSPORT STATEMENTS OF KERN

Bosch Buyer Will Be Brought Back From Europe, U. S. Officials Indicate

By Universal Service.

Washington, Feb. 2.—The affidavits upon which Martin E. Kern obtained passports to Europe were a tissue of misstatements, further investigation at the State Department disclosed.

While still declining to discuss the case, it was apparent from the attitude of department officials that the central figure in the Bosch Magneto Company scandal will be brought back to face Federal prosecution for perjury.

Although negative, the only comment made at the department was particularly significant. It was:

"Anything we could say at this time might defeat the ends of justice."

From accurate sources of information it was learned that Kern in his affidavit swore to a discrepancy of ten years in his age; that he was a citizen of the United States, and that his parents were naturalized citizens of the United States.

CITIZEN OF GERMANY.

It has since developed that Kern, to whom the Bosch properties were sold for a mere fraction of their true worth, is a citizen of Germany. The citizenship of his father still appears to be in doubt. The department has not yet determined whether he was born in Germany or Switzerland.

The misstatement as to his age is regarded by department officials as of great importance. By this means, it is pointed out, he may attempt to prove that he is not the same Kern who served a prison term for a diamond robbery.

It is understood that the State Department's next step will be to turn all of its evidence over to the Department of Justice for action.

Kern's association with the Department of Commerce was also gone into. Aside from a mere statement of facts already known, department officials were strangely reticent. They admitted Kern had offered to work for the department as a dollar-a-year foreign trade representative, and that he had been given letters of introduction to Commercial Attache Tower at London, with the understanding that his appointment would depend on Tower's recommendation.

NOT INVESTIGATED AT HOME.

No one at the department would state, however, whether in the light of recent developments these letters had been recalled. According to one official, there was no objection to giving such letters to "a man so well-known as Mr. Kern."

There was no explanation, though, why the department itself had not passed upon the qualifications of a man "so well known," and had passed the matter on to Tower. Whether Mr. Tower has ever made any recommendations in the matter was not revealed, nor was it denied that Kern would have been employed in the event of a favorable recommendation.

"Mr. Kern is not an employe of the Department of Commerce," was the only direct statement officials would make.

Agent Tells How He Bought Bosch Property

By Universal Service.

New York, Feb. 2.—How Martin E. Kern purchased the Bosch Magneto Company for $4,150,000 at an auction under the supervision of A. Mitchell Palmer, then alien property custodian was revealed by Howard C. Griffiths, who represented Mr. Kern. Mr. Griffiths said:

"My impression gained from the prospectus sent out by Mr. Palmer, was that the book value of the Bosch properties was from $7,000,000 to $9,000,000. Therefore, although Mr. Kern had instructed me to bid not more than $4,000,000, I offered $4,150,000, because of opposition from a syndicate which I understand was backed by Mr. Fisk of the Fisk Tire & Rubber Company, and Mr. Willys, of the Willys-Overland Company.

"Although my association with Mr. Kern dates back six years, I had no idea at the time of the purchase that he was not an American citizen, as has been alleged. I had heard that he was a political power close to Perroes. I supposed of course that he was a voter."

ATTACKS USE OF MACHINE GUNS BY POLICE

Senator McDonnell Backs Bill to Curb Expenditures by Commissioner Curtis

Senator William H. McDonnell at a hearing today at the State House on his bill requiring the approval of the Mayor and City Council of all expenditures by the police commissioner, attacked the use of machine guns by the Boston police.

"A conference has been going on in Washington," said the Senator, "for the purpose of disarming, for getting down to a peace basis. At the same time here in the Hub of the Universe, we buy machine guns for the police. They were not used until the other night, and then for what purpose? To arrest an old man, Remi Murray, sixty-two years old, with one arm bandaged.

"The department paid a Philadelphia concern last year $6,322.50 for uniforms and then paid a Boston firm $3,000 to alter them. The police department is the only instance where one man is given power to spend money without supervision. It is not right for one man to be subjected to such temptation.

"There is a question in the minds of some as to whether the police are a Boston or a State department, but Boston pays for it and we want a voice in the expenditure."

James H. Devlin, secretary to Police Commissioner Edwin U. Curtis, opposed the bill. He said that the police expenditures for 1921 were $4,076,351 and that only about one-eighth of this sum was uncontrolled.

1921 SURPLUS IN EPISCOPAL CHURCH

National Treasurer Shows Marked Increase Despite Hard Times

The Episcopal Church in the United States finished 1921 with a comfortable surplus despite hard times, according to a report by Lewis B. Franklin, national treasurer of the church. The actual surplus will not be known definitely until complete reports have been received from China, Japan, the Philippines, Alaska, and other distant fields.

In 1919 the entire revenue of the church for national purposes, exclusive of diocesan and parochial income, was $1,106,512.94. Under the impetus of the Nation Wide Campaign of the Church, the income for 1920 increased to $1,483,124.58. In 1921 this income again increased to $1,571,958.71.

These figures are not to be confused with the recently reported increase of $10,000,000 in the total revenues of the church, which amount covered the receipts for parochial and diocesan as well as for national purposes.

CONGRESS GETS FORD'S MUSCLE SHOALS PLAN

Weeks Says Bidder Would Get 40 to 50 Million at 4 P. C. for 100 Years

By Associated Press.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Henry Ford's proposal for the government projects at Muscle Shoals, Ala., was submitted today to Congress by Secretary Weeks, for "such action as Congress may deem appropriate." The only suggestions contained in the letter of transmission related to specific clauses in the contract and the desirability of amendments which would, in the event the proposal be accepted by Congress further safeguard the government's interests.

Otherwise, the Secretary of War avoided reference to congressional action involving the ultimate acceptance or rejection of the offer as submitted.

"In the event Mr. Ford's proposal is accepted," Secretary Weeks declared, "the government must make new appropriations amounting to $40,000,000 to $50,000,000, of which Mr. Ford will have the benefit for approximately one hundred years at 4 per cent."

IF PLAN IS REJECTED.

In the event the offer be rejected, the Secretary gave it as his opinion that Dam Number 3 (Wilson Dam) should be completed by the government, and that the power requirements for commercial purposes, the benefits to navigation as well as the possible needs of the government would warrant this expenditure.

"If this were done," he continues, "the government may then proceed to sell the product to the best advantage. In such case the amount of the government's present proposed investment would be very materially reduced, because Dam Number 3, costing from $18,000,000 to $28,000,000, would not be built," and it would not be necessary to make the full installation of power plant on the Wilson Dam until the market required such installation.

"This partial installation," he explained, "would effect a saving of present investment in at least the sum of $3,000,000, leaving, according to the chief of engineers' estimate, not to exceed $22,000,000 to be invested by the government at this time, instead of $40,000,000 to $50,000,000.

"At this time," Weeks said, "when there is a large amount of unemployment it is not without importance to consider the advantage to the nation of the employment of the large amount of labor required in undertaking this development."

Weeks emphasized the necessity for determining "whether the advantage to the government in having nitrate plant No. 2 maintained in readiness for the manufacture of explosives and in actual production of fertilizer, together with the improvement to navigation, is of sufficient importance to justify the proposed departure from the present policy of the law in regard to dealing with the waterpower resources of the nation and to warrant leasing to Mr. Ford government property for so long a period at the rental proposed.

"I believe it would be a better policy," the Secretary wrote, "to limit the contract to a term of fifty years (instead of 100)."

The Secretary suggested a modification by Congress of the proposal so that the government the operating company to be created failed to carry out performance of the contract, some penalty would be imposed.

Referring to a clause, the Secretary adds that it might be contended that the language used "is susceptible of a construction to the effect that Mr. Ford is personally bound only to see that his company enters into the contracts required to carry out the terms of the proposal and this point should be cleared up so that there can be no question as to its construction."

AS WEEKS SEES IT.

Secretary Weeks outlined to Congress the offer by Mr. Ford in this way:

"Mr. Ford offers to undertake the completion of dam No. 2 and the construction of dam No. 3, according to the government's plans, for which he shall be reimbursed the actual cost, and to lease the dams and power plants at an annual rental equivalent to 4 per cent. of the cost to the government of completing dam No. 2 and constructing dam No. 3 (exclusive of the cost of acquiring lands and flowage rights for dam No. 3).

"The rentals of 4 per cent. are to commence, respectively, in six years after dam No. 2 has been completed to the point where equipment for 100,000-horsepower is installed and ready for service, and four years after the equipment to develop 80,000-horsepower is installed and ready for service.

"At Dam No. 3, in the meantime, during the six-year and three-year periods, respectively, he offers to pay, upon Dam No. 2 an annual rental of $200,000 and on Dam No. 3, $160,000.

"His offer places upon the United States the responsibility for repair and maintenance of the two dams, other than the power houses, which power houses and electrical equipment he agrees to maintain at his own expense in efficient operation condition. As compensation to the United States for the repair and upkeep of Dam No. 2 and locks he offers to pay the sum of $25,000 annually and of Dam No. 3 and lock the sum of $20,000 annually.

FREE TO GOVERNMENT.

"He also agrees to furnish electricity for operating the locks at each of these dams without charge to the government, and in addition he agrees to pay the sum of $23,473 semi-annually for the purpose of building up a sinking fund to return to the United States at the end of the lease, or such a sum of money which he estimates if invested at 4 per cent. will be approximately $40,000,000.

"As a condition of this offer he asks that the United States sell to him nitrate plants Nos. 1 and 2, the Waco quarry and the Gorgas-Warrior steam plant, with all appurtenances, for the sum of $5,000,000, payable $1,000,000 down and the balance in annual installments of $1,000,000 each with 5 per cent. interest on deferred payments.

"Ford agrees to operate nitrate plant No. 2 at the approximate present annual capacity of its machinery and equipment in the production of nitrogen and other fertilizer compounds throughout the lease period, and to maintain it in its present condition of readiness, or its equivalent, for immediate operation in the manufacture of materials necessary in time of war for the production of explosives.

"He agrees that the fertilizer produced at nitrate plant No. 2 shall not be sold at a profit in excess of 8 per cent., and to turn over nitrate plant No. 2 whenever it shall be required for the national defence."

HARDING WOULD AMEND ALLIED DEBT MEASURE

Washington, Feb. 2.—President Harding objects to some of the provisions of the allied debt refunding bill as passed by the Senate, according to information understood to have been given today to the House Ways and Means Committee. After the committee had conferred today with Secretary Mellon regarding the bill, Chairman Fordney said action would be deferred until he could consult with the executive.

FOSSIL RAIN PRINTS FOUND AT HARTFORD

Hartford, Feb. 2.—The fossil imprint of raindrops on a brownstone slab has been presented to the geological museum of Trinity College, it was announced today. The slab is less than an inch thick and about ten inches square, and was found forty feet down in a quarry about 100 yards from the college grounds.

Fresh From Paris

Latest Word From Marie Suzanne

Paris, France.

PARIS slips her afternoon tea like the gay little Hindu maison Babani intends her to be, and it takes a very definite Hindu spirit to live up to negligee, headdress and slippers all at once! A tunic of red and gold metal cloth drops its gold-embroidered edge over slender pointed trousers of gold cloth with embroidery in self color that have quaint red beads to dangle from them. A cap of gold net and gold lace and a pair of gold kid slippers with a romantic twist to their toes, complete the costume.

THE simplicity of line of a daytime frock from Le Breton contributes to the success of the embroidery that trims it. The bodice of this model in dark blue silk jersey blouses generously at the natural waistline and has a becoming round neck and long wide sleeves, banded with embroidery in henna, orange and yellow silk. A design in these colors forms a band from waistline to hem at one side of the skirt that continues across the bottom. This, undoubtedly, is the sort of thing we will wear for Spring.

DENIES ABANDONING INFANT IN ALLSTON

John J. McBride of Wakefield was arraigned in the Brighton Court today and pleaded not guilty to abandoning an infant girl on the Boston & Albany tracks in Allston last Saturday. His sister-in-law, Lena J. Dalton, who confessed to being the mother of the baby, was not arraigned, as she is under treatment at the City Hospital. Judge Connelly held McBride in $5,000 bail for a hearing February 16, when Miss Dalton probably will be able to appear in court.

DENNISON FOR INSURANCE TO AID IDLE

Tells Legislators Protection Against Unemployment Works Well in His Plant

In favoring a law for unemployment insurance at a State House hearing today Henry S. Dennison, millionaire Framingham manufacturer said his firm has adopted the unemployment insurance plan and found it operated successfully.

Mr. Dennison said he believed the same course should be followed in relation to unemployment insurance as is done under the workman's compensation act.

Representative Henry L. Shattuck of Boston, who filed the bill, said that more than $1,000,000 was paid out last year by overseers of the poor because of unemployment.

Many labor union officials, following the lead of Samuel Gompers, opposed the legislation, saying it would increase unemployment instead of correcting or aiding it.

Representative Shattuck said the bill was intended to protect the steady man who was thrown out of employment through no fault of his own, while labor representatives and the employers of labor opposed to the bill said it would not be of assistance to those thrown out of work.

Shattuck said the purpose of the bill was to meet future crises and prevent swings of depression.

He said the bill applied to all persons over eighteen years of age engaged in a gainful occupation, with four specific exceptions, the exceptions being those engaged in interstate commerce work, farm laborers or domestic servants, those whose income from any source not depending on their own exertions was in excess of $200 and those whose total annual income exceeded $1,560, or who are ordinarily or mainly dependent for their livelihood upon some other person.

The amount of compensation after seven days of unemployment, if previously employed for twenty-six weeks, would be $1.00 a day or $6 a week for thirteen weeks, under the terms of the bill.

SALEM MAN DESCRIBES WASHINGTON RESCUES

Salem, Feb. 2.—A first-hand description of the Knickerbocker Theatre disaster in Washington is contained in a letter received by Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Ford of South Salem from their son, Carl L. Ford, who is in that city with the Bureau of Standards. He and others worked for half an hour to release a woman who was pinned beneath a section of the roof, he said. Despite the pain she was suffering the woman calmly retained her self-possession and directed the work of the rescuers until she was extricated. As soon as she was freed, however, she fainted.

JAIL AND PROBATION FOR GIRLS IN KNICKERS

Harriet McNaughton of Everett and Minnie Moosehead of Malden, who wore knickerbockers when they were arrested in Bradley square, changed to more conventional attire when they appeared before Judge Sullivan in Municipal Court today. They are accused of night walking. Miss Moosehead refused to go back to the House of the Good Shepherd, so she was sentenced to Sherborn. She appealed. Miss McNaughton was placed on probation on agreeing to go to the House of Welcome.

PAWTUCKET LIQUOR ARRESTS ON INCREASE

Pawtucket, R. I., Feb. 2.—Pawtucket is doing all it can to enforce the prohibitory amendment, declares Mayor Robert A. Kenyon. Despite the assertion, however, the number of arrests made during the past month shows an increase over the December record.

"Open house" in moonshine alley, where "booing" whiskey is dispensed at exorbitant prices, is blamed by many officials for existing conditions.

SINKING BOSTON SHIP ABANDONED BY CREW

The Boston schooner Senator was abandoned by her crew not far from St. Johns, N. B., after she had sprung a leak and headed over while trying to make shore, according to dispatches here from the Canadian city. All members of the crew led by Captain John White, reaped to St. Johns in dories. The Senator, which was later towed to port as a derelict vessel, was carrying a cargo of olives to St. Johns for trans-shipment to Montreal.

HARVEY, RECOVERED, ON WAY BACK TO LONDON

GAS IN WAR IS BANISHED BY 'BIG FIVE'

Agree Also to Prohibit Use of Submarines as Destroyers of Commerce

By Universal Service.

Washington, Feb. 2. — The armaments conference wiped clean the naval limitation half of its slate, and made considerable headway in clearing up the Far Eastern side at its fifth plenary session today.

The five-power naval limitation treaty, and a supplemental pact by the same nations abolishing gas as an instrument of war and prohibiting the use of submarines as commerce destroyers, were submitted and adopted, and nine of the seventeen committee resolutions dealing with China were approved.

The delegates also were appraised of the terms of the Shantung settlement, and witnessed a love feast between the Chinese and Japanese and Messrs. Hughes and Balfour, whose mediation efforts brought an end to the long and bitter controversy.

In the midst of the love feast Mr. Balfour took the conference by surprise with an announcement that Great Britain will restore the leased territory of Wei-Hai-Wei to China. The British delegate in chief recovered himself sufficiently, however, to explain that the promise was contingent on fulfillment of all conditions in the many-sided Shantung agreement between China and Japan.

Wednesday's clean-up leaves only two matters of importance to be settled before the Far Eastern phase of the conference is completed and the treaties embodying results there ready for submission at a January session. It is believed certain these treaties will be in shape by the end of next week, if not much earlier.

The two matters still in an unsettled state are the famous twenty-one demands and the Chinese Eastern Railway. Japan flatly refuses to accede to this proposal. Indications are that Japan will win out, although there may be some sort of a nebulous resolution adopted as a "face-saver."

The question in the Chinese Eastern Railway matter is what to do with this road pending the time it can be turned back to Russia, the owner. It was taken over by the allies during the war, and has been operated since by an allied technical operating board. The sub-committee of experts which considered the question recommended that the operating board be continued. A sub-committee of delegates now is considering this recommendation.

All other questions on the Far Eastern Section of the Agenda have been disposed of in committee and treaties now are being formulated by a drafting sub-committee. There will be at least two of these treaties.

GIRL STRUCK DOWN BY BLOW OF STRANGER

Malden and Melrose police are searching for an unidentified man who walked up to sixteen-year-old Mary Zonia, while she was standing on the platform of the Oak Grove station of the Boston & Maine Railroad and knocked her down with a blow in the face.

The young girl, who lives in a secluded section of Malden, first noticed the young man when she was about halfway from her home to the station. When she saw he was following her she ran to the station and notified the station agent. The agent stood by the girl's side until her train pulled in. Then he turned to attend to his duties. Before the girl could get aboard, the young man rushed up and hit her in the face, knocking her unconscious to the platform.

As the girl struck the platform, the thug turned and ran.

CURLEY BACK IN FORM FOR BIG BANQUET

Peters to Speak Tonight; Caution Taken Against Anything Like G. O. P. Raid

Mayor-elect James M. Curley's tongue is in good working order again, and he is in fine oratorical fettle for the big banquet in his honor to be held at the Copley-Plaza Hotel tonight.

This reference to Mr. Curley's tongue is no joke. In the last hours of the recent mayoralty campaign his tongue was injured so badly that, for weeks, it caused him a great deal of suffering.

It was the night before election that his automobile was badly jounced by a defect in the road, causing Mr. Curley to bite his tongue. While the injury did not cause him much inconvenience for a few days, he neglected to have the tongue attended to. When real trouble developed it was necessary for a surgeon to perform a slight operation and to order Mr. Curley to take a vacation and do very little talking.

PETERS TO ATTEND.

Today the doctor says his tongue is fully restored to its former vigor and he need not worry about using it tonight.

Mayor Peters has decided to be a good sport and contribute to the success of the Curley banquet. He not only will attend, but also will make a speech of encouragement for the man who preceded and who will follow him in office.

George S. Smith, former president of the Boston City Club and Boston Chamber of Commerce, will be toastmaster. There will be eighteen at the head table, representing the political, military and naval, business, professional and educational activities of the community. There will be ten at a table and 105 tables have been set in the banquet hall.

Mayor Curley will receive from 6 to 6:30. There will be a program of motion pictures and entertainment contributed by the top-liners from the leading Boston theatres from 6:30 to 8:30 when dinner will be served. At the conclusion of the dinner all the tables will be moved to the front of the speakers' section.

LESSON FROM G. O. P.

Taking a leaf from the book of experience of the promoters of the dinner in honor of Governor Cox held recently in this city, Mayor-elect Curley has had notice served upon the management of the hotel that they must do their utmost to see that there is no repetition tonight of that sorry Republican affair.

Springfield, Feb. 2.—The pretentious two-family, semi-colonial home of William May at No. 152 Sumner avenue was partially destroyed today by a $6,000 fire caused by an exploding hot water heater. Fragments of the boiler were found imbedded in the dining room ceiling. A maid, the only person at home when the explosion occurred, escaped injury.

Eliot Is Surprised by Doubt That Monkey Is Man's Ancestor

Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard, in a telegram to Kentucky, where a war is being waged over the Darwinian theory, expressed astonishment that there should be any doubt that man was once a monkey.

Dr. Eliot's wire with similar telegrams from other educators have been inserted into a battle to prevent the teaching of Darwinism in educational institutions supported by State money.

So bitter has the trouble become that William Jennings Bryan was called to Lexington to speak against the theory of evolution.

Today at the State capital, where a bill is pending to bar "Darwin" from State-supported schools, a public hearing will be held at which man's origin will be discussed.

POPULATION OF RUSSIA CUT 18 MILLIONS

Great Decrease Is Reported by Bolshevik Press, Washington Reports

By Associated Press.

Washington, Feb. 1.—A decrease of about 18,000,000 in the population of Soviet Russia as compared with pre-war estimates is reported by the Bolshevik press, according to a state-ment issued today by the Commerce Department.

For 1921, the statement said, the population of Soviet Russia was placed at 130,707,000 by a Bolshevik census.

To Ask Million Barrels of Flour for Russia

By Associated Press.

Philadelphia, Feb. 2.—Through the American Friends Service Committee, the Quakers of America today announced they had set themselves the task of obtaining 1,000,000 barrels of flour in this country, to be added to the Russian relief now being carried on by the government and various semi-public organizations.

EXPLANATION OF SNOW FROLIC DEMANDED

Springfield Mothers, Recognizing Daughters' Photos, Seek Athletes

Springfield, Feb. 2.—The trouble that was started when Springfield Y. M. C. A. College authorities laid hands on a picture showing two star athletes romping in the snow with ten girls from the Lasell Dancing Academy, all participants in the dance being dressed very scantily, has not yet ended.

The two men, Arthur Shaffer, football star, and Earl Carlson, baseball player, both seniors at the college, were suspended. They returned to school today on the expiration of their suspensions. But—

They are now being sought by a procession of highly indignant mamas, who have seen the photograph of the snow frolic and have recognized daughter's features in the crowd of "Grecian dancers" and bathing girls. The mamas exhibit a consuming desire to speak with the young athletes and demand an explanation.

Relatives of the girls, as well as the college authorities, have seized every one of the pictures of the affair that they could find, and have destroyed them. The men and four of the girls, it seems, wore bathing suits, while six more girls were dressed in filmy draperies, and all were cavorting 'bout the snow.

At 70 Waltzes With Bride 68, Waiting Honeymoon Train

Providence, Feb. 2.—"Our years may be many, but our troubles are few," sang Charles Gallter, 70-year-old bridegroom, as he waltzed gaily in the Union Station with his 68-year-old bride, to the delight of hundreds. They were waiting for the "Honeymoon Express" to take them to New York for a bridal tour, after their marriage in Trinity Union Methodist Church.

"Our hearts are young and we are as happy as lambs on the green," said the white-haired groom as he bowed with courtly grace to his blushing bride at the end of the dance. While the onlookers cheered and showered the happy couple with confetti, allier took his bride in his arms and kissed her.

Both have been married before. "We know what we are doing," said Gallier.

WEBSTER BLOCK DESTROYED BY $100,000 FIRE

Town's Largest Building Razed While Another Blaze Is Fought

Webster, Feb. 2.—Music Hall Block, in the heart of the business district here, was destroyed by fire today, entailing a loss of $100,000 and for a time threatening adjacent property. While the firemen were fighting this blaze they were called to extinguish a fire in the home of Joseph Snow on Prospect street. They arrived at the Snow house to find the family standing in the rain in their night clothes.

In the Music Hall Block were a motion picture theatre, owned by the Commonwealth Amusement Company of Boston; the Webster Apparel Company, manufacturers of women's waists, and the grain and flour store of W. W. Holmes. The building was the largest in town, and was owned by W. H. Cassidy.

The fire started in the basement and had worked its way to the second floor before it was discovered.

The fire in the home of Joseph Snow also started in the basement. The family awakened to find the house filled with smoke and fled.

BOGUS TWO CENT STAMPS ARE APPEARING

Counterfeits, First Since 1895, Are Engraved With Many Imperfections

New York, Feb. 2 (By the Associated Press).—Counterfeits of the familiar two-cent postage stamp have appeared for the first time since 1895. One of the new counterfeits came into the hands of a local collector today. It is an engraving—the first on record.

To the casual glance the new counterfeit seems familiar enough, but comparative examination quickly exposes poor workmanship and reveals many points of variance from the original. Washington's head is shorter, the nose has a hook, the eyes seem to glance furtively to the side instead of straight ahead, the queues appear carelessly knotted, and there are smears where the genuine has delicate bits of engraving work.

Engraving on the neck of the counterfeit father of his country is in dashes. The genuine stamp has cross-matching. The button on Washington's togs is not well defined in the fake stamp, the lock of hair hanging over the ear is heavier and much of the fine detail is missing. There are no folds of flesh under the jaw.

FIANCEE'S REAL AGE EXPOSED BY VOTING LIST

Nearly Lost a Husband and That's Only Part of Trouble in Worcester

Worcester, Feb. 2.—Charges by Representative Cornelius W. Corbett of this city at a hearing at the State House that "in the aristocratic districts of Worcester the ages of women are omitted from the voting lists, but in the mill sections they are published," have aroused the city.

He asked the committee on election laws to favor a bill forbidding the publication of women's ages. A young man in Worcester, Representative Corbett declared, learned through a voting list that his fiancee was several years his senior and the match was nearly broken off.

Colonel Edwin R. Shumway, chairman of the registrars of voting, is indignant over Corbett's charges. He said:

"His statements are absolutely untrue. The law requires a woman, when registering, to tell her age. As far as I know, the law has been enforced without exception in Worcester. The only way we can identify a person who has the name the same as another is by the age. For instance, we have on our list 16 men of the same name. We can identify them by their ages. A woman, no matter how old, should reveal her age."

Mrs. Frank B. Hall, chairman of the Republican women's city committee, declared:

"I do not see why the ages of women should not be posted. If a person wants to know how old a woman is, let him look at the voting list."

Mrs. William A. Millea, chairman of the Democratic women's city committee, declared:

"I favor Representative Corbett's bill. I hope a law will be passed so that women's ages will not be posted for every curious person to read."

McCarthy was a machinist at the navy yard for twenty-five years. A brother in Connecticut is his only relative. McCarthy was of medium build and dark complexion.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Fashionable Folk Aid Sale for Industrial School

By BETTY ALDEN

RARE objects of art—of museum standard—are to be found for sale at the exhibition and sale which began Wednesday at the North Bennett Street Industrial School and which is to last until Saturday, inclusive.

Society folk who have always interested themselves in the North Bennet Street School have arranged the affair and are to be on hand throughout the four days of the sale, which is of course to help carry on the work of the school.

Several months ago, back in November, I believe, a similar sale was held at the school, and a goodly portion of the smart set patronized it and found not a few choice antiques and bits of art, pottery and the like. Just recently a tramp steamer made its belated way into port laden with similar objects d'art, and so this second sale and exhibition is being held.

These rare pieces, which were shipped from Saragossa and Barcelona, and said to offer excellent competition with the rare bits exhibited at the November sale—and the latter aroused universal commendation for the choice of selection of the pieces and the beauty and charm of arrangement.

Of those who are conducting the current sale are the Misses Ethel Forbes and Maud Sturgis, who head of the committee composed of Miss Mary U. Burrage, Walter H. Bradley, Mrs. Gorham Brooke, Miss Pauline Fenno, F. Murray Forbes, Ralph Gray, Miriam Ladd, Mrs. John L. Saltonstall, Miss Gertrude G. Sturgis and James A. Sullivan.

Thus these four days of the sale, one is not surprised to see various art devotees, many of them drawn from the ranks of the famed "four hundred," making their art-inspired way to No. 39 North Bennett street, where the school is located.

An event scheduled for tomorrow afternoon, and calculated to draw the music-loving contingent of society, is the musicale at 3 o'clock, for which Mrs. Clement S. Houghton is opening her Chestnut Hill home at No. 152 Suffolk road. Tomorrow's affair is the second subscription musicale for the benefit of the Travelers' Aid Society, the first one having been given a month or more ago, also out Chestnut Hill way.

The program includes piano solos by Miss Cornelia Hallowell, selections for the violin by Mr. Otto Teegen, monologue by Mrs. F. W. Lee and songs by Mrs. Langdon S. Simons. Members of the committee in charge of the musicale are Mesdames Arthur T. Bradlee, James D. Colt, William A. Copeland, Horace S. Fraser, Henry W. Harris, Roland G. Hopkins, Chandler Hovey, George Waterman, J. W. Wheeler and Miss Edith Meir.

Society everywhere is watching with keen interest the comings and goings, as well as the readings and writings, of Margot Asquith, who, needless to say, is being most royally entertained by the fashionable world ever since her arrival on these shores.

On Tuesday evening the famous wife of Britain's former Prime Minister was entertained at a dinner given by Miss Mabel Gerry at the latter's home at No. 2 Beacon Sixty-first street. The dinner company included a number of guests well known in Boston. "Among those present" were Prince and Princess Bibesco, Mr. and Mrs. Henry White, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ridgway of Philadelphia, Lord Richard Nevil and Mr. and Mrs. Goodhue Livingston—the latter, by the way, still retains her membership in the Chilton Club of Boston.

Following the dinner there was a musicale and dancing, and among the guests who came on later were Mrs. William Bayard Cutting, Mr. and Mrs. James D. Lanier, General and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Miss Grace Vanderbilt, Mrs. Howard Cushing, Mrs. Richard Gambrill, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver G. Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. John Wanamaker, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. R. Thorton Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvanus Stokes, Jr., Priscilla, Countess of Annesley, Mr. and Mrs. Lydig Hoyt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Potter Russell, Mr. and Mrs. A. Perry Osborn, Mrs. Minturn Pinchot, Francis Burke Roche, Mr. Wadsworth Lewis, Philip Carroll, and Ashbel Lewis. At midnight a buffet supper was served.

Miss Gerry ranks as one of the most exclusive hostesses of Gotham society, and those who receive invitations to her home bear impregnable social prestige.

Miss Pauline Fenno, of Beacon street, who is on the committee in charge of the object d'art sale being held this week at the North Bennett Street Industrial School. A number of prominent society folk are interesting themselves in this sale, at which some rare bits of art may be procured.

17 HURT AS SO. BRAINTREE BUS TURNS OVER

Skids Into Curb and Is Upset as It Is Going Around Corner

Three men were severely injured and fourteen others were more or less cut by broken glass and shaken up when a motor bus in which they were riding from Holbrook to South Braintree capsized in the latter town today.

Frank Sullivan suffered the loss of a finger, which was severed. Martin Mattimore and Harry Cole received serious scalp wounds.

They were treated by Dr. F. H. Merriam, who lives near the scene of the accident, and later sent to their homes

The occupants of the bus were all shoeworkers, who live in Holbrook and work in South Braintree. The vehicle is owned by the Holbrook Improvement Association and was driven by Wilford Borden at that town.

When the bus was turning the corner of Washington and Franklin streets on arriving at South Braintree it skidded into the curb and toppled over with a crash that was heard blocks away.

The crash and the cries of the injured and frightened men in the bus caused a crowd to rush to their rescue.

SHAUGHNESSY IS DEAD FROM HIS INJURIES

Washington, Feb. 2.—Edward H. Shaughnessy of Chicago, second assistant Postmaster-General, died here early today at Walter Reed Hospital from injuries received in the Knickerbocker Theatre disaster Saturday night.

Mr. Shaughnessy's death followed a sudden heart collapse. This was preceded by development of internal complications late yesterday. He suffered a broken pelvis and other injuries in the accident.

Mr. Shaughnessy's wife and his ten-year-old daughter Ruth are being treated at another hospital, the daughter having had both arms broken, while Mrs. Shaughnessy is suffering from a fractured rib and shock.

President Harding had shown constant concern over Mr. Shaughnessy's condition.

The death of the second assistant postmaster-general brings the fatality list of the disaster as now recorded by the police up to 98.

DOG TEAMS LED ON FIRST LAP BY WALDEN

Wonalancet Husky Quintet Is Ahead at Pontook, N. H., in 3-Day Snow Race

Berlin, N. H., Feb. 2.—A team of half-breed huskies—American dogs that are descendants of Peary's famous dog, Polaris—were fastest over the snow today in the opening stages of the Eastern international championship 120-mile dog race. With Arthur T. Walden of Wonalancet, N. H., driving them on, the five dogs led by the big Chinook covered the first twenty miles in faster time than any of the other competitors.

Four teams, two of them American and two Canadian, set out on the long three-day mush at half-hour intervals after dawn today.

Henri Skene of La Loutre, P. Q., was first away, hitting the trail with six dogs in single file. He passed Milan postoffice, ten miles out, in two minutes later, and went through Pontook, ten miles further on, in four minutes later. A fall of a sled gave the race an unwintry touch.

First of the Americans to start, Jacques Suzanne of Lake Placid, N. Y., flicked Pilot, giant leader of a team of Siberian and Eskimos, into action half an hour late. A fault in his sled made slowering, and it was an hour and six minutes before they appeared at Milan having on, the sled broke down. Suzanne was overtaken by Jean Lebel of Berthina, P. Q., who had overcome a half hour advantage enjoyed by Suzanne.

Lebel, who, like Walden, did not race with only five dogs, while a mongrel team at Milan in 58 minutes, and at Pontook in 49 minutes, one that was bettered only by Walden.

The latter, starting last, was first to Milan, covering that span in 48 minutes, and equalled Lebel's time to Pontook.

The racing dogs headed for Berlin from the latter place, and thereafter way for today led them through Gorham Notch and the picturesque country between there and Colebrook, where they will end their dashes and stop overnight. The relay aggregated 53 miles, the lone of the three-day dash.

The race is for the championship and for a gold cup, together with cash prizes. It is held under the auspices of the Nansen Ski Club, as part of a three-day carnival here.

A NEW MODEL

THE era of Phonograph perfection began ten years ago with the manufacture of Sonoras. The gulf between mechanism and music was first bridged by Sonora tone quality.

THE INSTRUMENT OF QUALITY

Sonora

CLEAR AS A BELL

The Highest Class Talking Machine in the World

This wonderful achievement received official recognition at the Panama Pacific Exposition. There the "only jury which heard and tested all the phonographs", awarded Sonora the highest score for tone quality, in competition with the world's foremost phonographs.

Year by year, Sonora steadily improves, surpassing even its own early standards. Today, as ever, Sonora is the instrument instinctively preferred by discriminating buyers.

Hope Hampton Shows Interviewer She Is Not Always In Serious Mood

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

HOPE HAMPTON is another example of how unaffected a successful star can be. Too often have players let stardom "go to their heads" and too often have they become "upstage," even those who have worked up the ladder from the dreary work—and that only sometimes—of being an "extra" through the hardships of playing atmosphere, "bits," second parts and then on to "leads" and stardom.

Miss Hampton, however, has remained sincere even though she has not had to remember days when she trudged from studio to studio hoping for at least a day's engagement as a member of some "mob." She is an unique member of the screen world for the reason that the first time she entered a studio she went in as a full-fledged star.

A year or so ago she was studying at the Sargent Dramatic School in New York. During one of the "examinations"—a mid-year, it might be called, for it was a performance given by the school at the end of the first six months of study—Miss Hampton had the role of a French vampire. "Which is pretty good," she remarked to me the other afternoon, "because 'it's Irish by am!'"

OFFERED CONTRACT.

It was her first appearance behind the footlights, and, naturally enough, she was nervous. At the end of it she walked into the wings, hoping and praying that she had done well enough to "pass." There she found a French producer waiting for her with a long-term contract in one hand and a fountain pen in the other.

"What?" asked Miss Hampton.

"Sign on ze dotted line," he said.

She did and then and there became a star. She didn't even finish her course at Sargent's.

Her first picture was "A Modern Silonie," in which she acquitted herself so creditably that the Hope Hampton Productions, Incorporated, seemed to be a definite thing. After that she made three pictures, of which "Star Dust," taken from the novel by Fannie Hurst, and now playing at Gordon's Olympia, is the last. Her next film will be "A Light in the Dark," in which she will start work as soon as her present tour of personal appearances is over.

Miss Hampton was a distinct shock to me when I met her the other day. I thought of her as she was in a recent photograph. There she was tall, majestic, cold and serious. Instead I found her small, vivacious, enthusiastic and full of fun.

HAS DEFINITE IDEAS.

Like Dorothy Gish, half-way measures never suit her. She is very positive. She has definite ideas on subjects, knows what she likes, what she dislikes, and why.

And if she likes things, she likes them very much and vice versa. There is nothing vacillating about her.

Like Dorothy Gish, too, she wants to go on the stage eventually, but preferably on the musical stage. Miss Hampton has a pleasing voice—hear her sing at Gordon's Olympia—and has a stage presence. For a brand-new star she is remarkably free from nervousness before an audience.

She will always be a surprise, probably, for one never knows how to find her. Just as she seemed so much older in a photograph in which she represented Thais, so she can seem child-like. Her hair is red, but photographs either very light or very dark, according to the lighting effects. In real life she is sometimes thoughtful, sometimes clowning.

In the midst of a serious discussion her sense of humor refuses to keep quiet any longer and she suddenly bursts forth with some joking remark on the subject in hand. But though she is ever changing, her purpose is not. She knows what she wants and where she wants to get, and she keeps her mind on that point always. In that way she'll doubtless get there.

LILLIAN GISH,

"ALL THE NEWS AT A GLANCE."

REX INGRAM is laying plans for his pictures to follow "The Prisoner of Zenda." It will be "Black Orchids," a story which he wrote himself some time ago and which was filmed by another company. Barbara La Mar will have the leading role. She will be remembered as the effective "heavy" in the last few Douglas Fairbanks pictures. . . Monte Blue is in Paris now, where he is appearing in the leading role of a new Pyramid production, "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge." He will be seen here at the Park Theatre next week with Miss Murray in "Peacock Alley," said to be a truly remarkable film. . . Bebe Daniels vehemently denies that she is engaged to Jack Dempsey or to anyone else. The rumors that they would marry have been spread about Hollywood for some time, but the star says that she is not even contemplating marriage.

WILL HOLD SERVICES IN ST. JAMES THEATRE

The evening services of Bromfield-Tremont Street Methodist Episcopal Church will be held in St. James Theatre, Huntington avenue, during the month of February. Rev. Frank Kingdon, pastor of this church, in explaining the reason for this change, said: "This is the most neglected part of lioston for religious services. There are hundreds of students in this vicinity who do not go to any religious services on Sunday evening and we are hoping by this arrangement to win them to the influences of a Christian life."

ARMENIAN UNION SENDS BRYCE CONDOLENCES

The Armenian National Union of America in a special session voted to send the following cablegram to Lady Bryce: "The Armenian National Union of America wishes to express its profound sense of loss and sorrow in the passing of Viscount Bryce, the distinguished and true friend of Armenia, scholar, statesman and lover of mankind. Please accept our heartfelt condolences."

CHARLESTOWN MACHINIST SUDDEN DEATH VICTIM

William Rogers, a machinist, living at No. 33 Pearl street, Charlestown, collapsed on the Charlestown bridge while walking to work in Boston, and died a short time after his arrival at the Haymarket Square Relief Hospital. Death is believed to have been due to heart trouble. He was forty years of age, and married.

FOREIGN FILMS ARE WORRYING MISS GISH

Movie Star Afraid British Producers Will Soon Be Big Competitors Here

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

It is a popular fallacy that a motion picture star is all beauty, and little or no brains. Regardless of how often writers who know many of these stars show that more than a few of them are not only stars, but their own business managers to boot, the fans go on believing that, because they have curls and good looking eyes it is impossible for them to think clearly.

Mary Pickford is, as those who have had business or social relations with her know, one of the finest business women in existence. The film producers and showmen have said over and over that there are few who are as well fitted to carry on the entire production of films as Miss Pickford, for she understands every phase of the work from the "props" department up.

GIVES POINTERS.

Lillian Gish is another who doesn't let her work as a star interfere with her interest in any other branch of this eighth art. She is now watching the trend of pictures closely and getting splendidly clear-cut ideas of the work from every point of view. During the casting of "The Orphans of the Storm" at Griffith's Mamaroneck studio, she and her sister were on hand all the time, alert watching the tryouts and if more than one case giving worthwhile pointers.

Just at present Miss Gish is troubled by the importation of foreign pictures. When they were first brought into this country many of the producers grew somewhat panicky. After that some declared that it was but a false alarm, and the rest, sheeplike, calmed down so that today they dismiss the thought with a flick of their large cigars.

Miss Gish, however, feels that the situation of these continental and British films is something for American producers to think about.

U. S. MUST DO ITS BEST.

"Passion," for example," she exclaimed, when I talked with her the other day. "Why, that was one of the most wonderful pictures I've seen. It was stupendous. And when you stop to think that those were made while they were still recovering from the ravages of war. It makes me solemn to think of what they will accomplish when they once settle down to producing and get into their stride.

"It's true, I suppose, what so many people say, that the films they send us are the pick of the lot. If we sent but a comparatively few overseas, of course, we'd choose our best. But the fact remains that they made them, and shows that they have the talent and intelligence to do it. Personally, that they will be our big competitors we are going to pick up our feet and do our very best—but we must do that!"

Here it may be added by the writer that the most successful parts of "Passion" were the mob scenes and the settings. In Griffith's "Orphans of the Storm" the mob scenes far outdo the best efforts of Ernst Lubitsch, the director of the first-named picture, in this line. By the same token, the settings in the "Orphans," on which Griffith lavished untold sums of money, have more color, more individuality than "Passion's."

FORMER QUINCY WOMAN SUICIDE IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, R. I., Feb. 2. — Mrs. Edith G. Gould, wife of William Spaulding Gould of No. 121 Broadway, was found dead in the bathroom of the home of Mrs. Mary Young, No. 35 Olive street. The gas jet was turned on full force and Medical Examiner W. H. Magill, who viewed the body, pronounced death due to suicide.

The woman was employed by Mrs. Young and was forty-eight years old. It is said she had been ailing for some time. She formerly lived in Quincy, Mass.

Book Test Revealed

Correct Title—Ascent of Man

Correct Title—Trail of the Lonesome Pine

Mr. Test Editor—Anyone who has fallen down in the Book Test Contest should read this paragraph. Children, you should study this section to see if hold my hearts or diamonds. If K. Q. 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2 and Ace, but on the whole it was the easiest contest I ever entered and also the most entertaining and most instructive. As the votes are counted I probably will be counted out, but I have acquired knowledge which will be of greater value than any prize.

The first "Getting Ahead" at No. 29 and the "Old Curiosity Shop" was going as strong as "Samson." But I was filled with "Joy and Comfort" mixed in a "Perfect Order" when in my destings I found that "Tyrone" was "A Modern Man" who, amidst his "Unrest Grain," was always "Striving for Pleasure." In spite of the "Warning" of "The House" of "Desolation," and was forever Flying "Hale and Hearty" between "Two Flags" and "Hearts Aflame" caused "Tears" to fill Miss Fabb under the same "Cloud" in the "Knight of the King's Guard." "Ho, Ho, Ho," Wallingford.

The Test Editor is not sure they are properly placed, but recognizes ten Correct Titles. Ten out of seventeen.

C. A. N., of Dorchester, who writes that the Town Meeting held on the last night for filing sets of answers, will be glad to know his letter is appreciated. His suggestion will be adopted.

Many other interesting letters await publication and may be printed as opportunity offers. ANY reader of the Boston American may take part in the $5,000 Famous Titles Test, which starts on Wednesday, March 1, but only those who took part in the Book Test can participate in the $5,000 Membership Competition.

The mother heard the child's screams, and phoned for the police ambulance. First aid treatment saved the child's life.

ON EDITOR'S SIDE.

The next comes from Salem:

Dear Mr. Test Editor—I feel as if I, or Mr. and Mrs. Jamies Flint, owe a few things in their proper light if he claims I "stamped" the "Orphans" with a No. 10. I fail to see any sign of a shipwreck around the boat. Why, I myself, I placed the men there we will know he is "Samson" and "Delilah" and "Hercules" along on its course. There is no sign of rowing. The man has been left there in supplement.

"Why I must sailing a Monarch! If the two bats were missing from the ark, I'd be sure to find something on the ark." I showed the artist all the ark and he kept taking pieced on too much. If I lose, I don't know my "Ps and Qs" and "Ps and Qs" are all correct. Yours testily, M.

"Never desired on account of the Eighteenth Amendment."

If anybody else has anything on the subject of "Marooned," the Test Editor will be glad to have it.

Dear Test Editor—What do you mean, "Have the flag upside down all in the grandstand?" Just because I have boating ties, and my friends on the other side I am going to quit? Not me! Not on your life! I'll stand around fighting with the guns! Are all correct. Yours testily, M.

The invitation to "leave the field quietly and in good order" was not addressed to those who have so many incorrect titles that they KNOW they will not be found among the leaders. COLLEGE SPOILS GENIUS, WARNS W. P. EATON

Sheltered Existence Takes Student From Real Life During Formative Years

"The college is probably the worst place a young man or woman of genius could go to," Walter Pritchard Eaton, Harvard, 1908, told an audience at the Harvard Club.

"American colleges have sterilized more creative artists than they have made. The sheltered existence at college takes the student away from real life during the formative years. College atmosphere is largely critical and this obstructs creative work.

"We may get censorship of the drama in New York. Then they'll censor books and still call it the 'land of the free.'

"Creativeness belongs to Bohemia, not to Brattle street, Cambridge. It is the duty of the college, by means of the spoken drama, to bring the people to greater intellectual development.

"Pictures and shows in question-able taste are not as bad for the people as the sentimental ones. Boston has the reputation as the easiest place in which a girl show can play to a full house.

"Professor Baker and his Harvard 47 workshop is fighting bravely against the influence of the stage of today and against the Brattle street atmosphere."

U. S. DELEGATES CUT FRILLS OFF THEIR NAMES

Elihu Root Uses Two Words, Jap Statesman 30 in Describing Himself

Washington, Feb. 2 (By the Associated Press).—When the American delegates to the arms conference came to describe themselves for the purposes of the list of plenipotentiaries that always precedes the official text of treaties, they set before the world a new example of democracy.

Titles and official designations of many sorts glitter opposite the names of the representatives of other governments who are parties to the treaties negotiated here, but under the head of American delegates in the new naval and submarine treaties appears simply this:

"For the President of the United States of America.

"Charles Evans Hughes.

"Henry Cabot Lodge.

"Oscar W. Underwood.

"Elihu Root.

"Citizens of the United States."

In decided contrast, every other delegate listed carries some sort of a "handle," long or short, to his name. The longest is that of the head of the Japanese, who is described thus:

"For His Majesty, the Emperor of Japan."

"Baron Tomosaburo Kato, Minister for the Navy, Junii, a member of the first class of the Imperial Order of the Grand Cordon of the Rising Sun, with the Paulownia Flower."

In past treaties, it has been customary at least to affix "The Honorable" before the name of each American plenipotentiary and to follow it by designating what public office, if any, he occupies.

HOME BREWERS CLOG SEWERS IN LAWRENCE

City Put to Considerable Expense to Clear Mains Blocked by Mash

Lawrence, Feb. 2.—Home brewers of Lawrence are proving a menace to public health, according to a declaration made by Alderman Patrick McNulty, head of the department of public engineering. The city official has appealed to Alderman Peter Carr, head of the police department.

Alderman McNulty declares that mash and other home brewing materials are clogging up the sewer system of Lawrence, and in some cases rendering sewer conditions a decided menace to health.

The mash thrown into the sewers by anticipating makers of large quantities of brew who fear the raiding squads, has hardened into solid masses, clogging up the mains. The appeal to the police head offered the suggestion that a vigorous drive be made on the makers of domestic connections to eliminate them.

Sections of the street have been torn up in some cases to free the pipes from the chalky mash accumulations and the home brewers are costing Lawrence considerable sums for pipe repairs.

Acting upon the suggestion of the engineering head the police find it easy in following clues in the districts where the mash clogged sewers are. Raids in the affected sections are planned.

WOMAN INVALID SAVED IN BACK BAY FIRE

Rescuer Sounds Alarm and Arouses Occupants on Every Floor of Burning House

An invalid woman was carried to safety, several other persons were assisted in similar escapes by firemen, and half a dozen more were driven to the street in scanty attire when fire destroyed a large part of the interior of a four-story brick apartment house at No. 88 St. Botolph street today.

The flames were discovered by John Chauncey of No. 424 Massachusetts avenue, who rang in the alarm. Despite the fact that the fire had started in the basement and had worked its way clear up to the roof through the dumb waiter shaft, the occupants were all asleep when Chauncey returned and entered the building. Dashing from floor to floor, he rapped on the doors hurriedly, arousing them.

At the apartment on the first floor, occupied by Mrs. Mary Keefe and her niece, Miss Mary Norton, Chauncey was called inside by the women. Mrs. Keefe was ill and could not get out unassisted. The rescuer promptly wrapped her in blankets and carried her from the building.

By this time the fire companies had arrived, and a second alarm had been sent in. Fireman Edward Beals of Protective Company No. 3 found the stairs and assisted several more persons out of the building.

The cause of the fire is undetermined. Damage, which was confined largely to the two upper floors, is estimated at $10,000.

Had to Pay Coal Clause Super-Charge or Lose Lighting Service

Threats to cut off electricity if customers did not pay the super-charge made under the coal clause, were made by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston, according to information made public at a hearing before the State Public Utilities Commission. The commission is hearing a petition of the Boston American and city of Boston to bring about a reduction in the price of electricity.

During the examination of Louis R. Wallis, sales superintendent of the Edison company, Attorney Arthur D. Hill intimated that the Edison company threatened to cut off the light in his home if he did not pay his full bill after he had protested against the imposition of the coal clause in his bill.

In a colloquy with Attorney Frederick Ives counsel for the Edison company, Attorney Hill said he paid Mr. Hill had communicated with Mr. Ives in protesting against the coal clause in his bill.

ADMITS MANY PROTESTS.

At the conclusion of the hearing Attorney Hill said that the correspondence between himself and the Edison Company relative to the matter would be introduced in evidence later. It was also learned that officials of the company, in effect, threatened several customers with loss of current if they did not pay the coal clause. Many persons protested against the imposition of the coal clause item in their bills, according to the testimony of Mr. Wallis.

Q.—Do you remember any customers who complained about the coal clause in their bills? A.—Yes, I remember that the S. A. Woods Machine Company complained.

Q.—Do you remember any others? A.—No.

Mr. Wallis said it would be difficult to find the correspondence containing these complaints as they were scattered through the general files of the company. He said the method of computing the amount to be charged each customer under the coal clause was not brought generally to the attention of the customers except as it appeared in the wording of the coal clause itself.

NEVER COMPUTED RESULTS.

The method was described in detail. he remembered, to the chairman of Framingham Board of Selectmen and a representative of the Gilchrist Company of Boston. The witness said he never figured out in dollars and cents the result of the coal clause. He could not tell how much was taken in in any month or during any year as the result of the imposition of the clause.

He added that the first change in the coal clause "came when a decision was made to high tension service users, as the company learned there was less loss between generator and consumer in that service than in the low tension service. Other changes were made later, he said.

One Million $1.00 Packages Of Genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets To Be Given Away Absolutely

FREE

as explained below to prove to you what they will do—Every Reader of this Paper Is Entitled To This Great Free Offer for Five Days

These are guaranteed to be the genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets prepared from the original formula of Dr. Catrin of the Faculty of Medicine of Paris. They positively contain no drugs in any form.

This Will Often Quickly Help You Increase Your Strength and Energy, Put On Pounds of Good Firm Flesh and Round Out Your Face and Figure If You Are Weak, Thin or Emaciated Due to Causes Explained Below

WOMEN WHO ARE SCRAWNY AND ANGULAR in appearance or who have hollows in the neck or sunken, flabby tissues will find that there is nothing like good firm flesh to round out face and figure and give a youthful appearance.

MEN WHO ARE THIN OR EMACIATED, with weak, flabby muscles, should try adding a few additional pounds of good firm flesh and see what a remarkable transformation it will quickly make in their appearance.

HUNDREDS of thousands are taking Yeast Vitamines—They may be just what you need to increase your weight and energy and give you that good firm flesh which you may have so long desired. The fact that you may have taken Yeast Vitamine Tablets, mixed with drugs, without obtaining results would not prove that our Genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets (pure and unadulterated) would not help you.

A small tablet which contains drugs might not contain a sufficient quantity of Vitamine to do you much good. Therefore, no matter what you may have tried without obtaining results, we advise you to get a free $1.00 package of our Genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets from your dealer today. Try them for ten days and watch the results.

Investigations of the Medical Research Committee (composed of eminent physicians and scientists) went to show that no matter what quantity of food may be taken, if such food is deficient in Vitamines, you gradually lose flesh and become thin and weakened, while a much smaller quantity of food, rich in vitamines, quickly produces good firm flesh, and increases weight, strength and energy, provided your blood contains a sufficient quantity of oxygenated organic iron to enable you to assimilate your food properly. Without organic iron both food and Vitamines are absolutely useless, as your body cannot change inert, lifeless food into living cells and tissue unless you have plenty of organic iron in your blood.

Blood examinations by physicians all over the country have shown that an enormous number of people are deficient in hemoglobin and organic iron in the blood stream, and this is often the real under lying cause of a thin, nervous, weak and run-down condition and it is for this reason that thousands of people may take Vitamines without obtaining results. It is not the fault of the Vitamines, but it is the fault of your blood. Organic iron takes up oxygen from your lungs. This oxygenated organic iron unites with your digested food as it is absorbed into your blood, like fire unites with coal or wood and by so doing it creates tremendous power and energy. Without organic iron in your blood your food merely passes through your body without doing you any good. Therefore, in practically every case where Vitamines are taken, organic iron is also necessary.

Pharmaceutical scientists tried in vain to produce organic iron. At last the problem was solved, so that you may now obtain pure organic iron from any druggist under the name of "Nuxated Iron," which is ready for immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood the moment it enters the system.

If you merely wish to gain greater strength, energy, vigor and endurance we recommend that you take Nuxated Iron only. DO NOT TAKE VITAMINES UNLESS YOU WISH YOUR WEIGHT INCREASED or to what a person should normally weigh. We do not claim, however, that Vitamines will put flesh on everybody. Some people are naturally too thin and will probably remain so in spite of Vitamines and everything else.

Those whose meals consist principally of meat, bacon, white bread, meats of various kinds, fish, puddings, tinned fruits and vegetables, pies and cakes, are likely to suffer from under-nourishment and a weakened, nervous condition due to a deficiency of both Vitamines and Organic iron, no matter how much they eat, and in such cases both Vitamines and Nuxated Iron should be taken. Always take Yeast Vitamine Tablets before meals and Nuxated Iron after meals.

Arrangements have been made with the druggists in this city to give a free sample of this paper a large $1.00 package of Genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets absolutely free, with every bottle of Nuxated Iron that you purchase. Be sure to take only Genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets with Nuxated Iron. Do not be misled by imitations which often contain drugs.

If as a result of faulty metabolism you feel tired in the morning, restless at night, if you suffer from weakness, nervousness or lack of vitality, if your flesh is soft or flabby; if your eyes lack luster or your lips are pale; if you feel the need of more pep, vigor and energy so that you radiate magnetism, Blow out and purchase an original package of Nuxated Iron, get a free $1.00 package of Yeast Vitamines with it and make this test.

Weigh yourself before you start and then test strength and endurance on a gymnasium trapeze, parallel bars or some article ten days and see for yourself what you have accomplished in weight, strength and endurance. It is often remarkable what an astonishing difference it makes in a person's appearance to round out face and figure with a few pounds of good, firm flesh, and it is often equally surprising what a tremendous gain there is in vim, vigor, force and energy a little more organic iron in your blood will give you.

If you are not entirely satisfied after making the above test you do not receive all and more than you expect, the manufacturers will promptly refund your money.

FREE $1.00 COUPON

This coupon if used within one week entitles you to one regular $1.00 package of Genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets, absolutely free with each bottle of Nuxated Iron that you purchase. If your dealer does not have our Vitamine tablets he can easily obtain them for you from our wholesale house. Cut out this coupon and present it to your dealer today.

FATHER AND SON SUMMONED IN McCAW CASE

Grand Jury Hearing in Alleged Poisoning of Girl by Stepmother Today

Providence, Feb. 2.—Seven men, all of Bristol, have been summoned to appear at a special session of the Grand Jury which convened today. All have been prominently connected with the McCaw case. Among them are Chief of Police Hugh F. Kelly, and Patrolman Hugh F. Breen, who were at the Bristol Cemetery when the body of Elsie McCaw, stepdaughter of Mrs. Ruth McCaw, was exhumed on the night of December 26; Robert J. McCay, the undertaker who exhumed the body; Dr. O. R. Seigel, who conducted the autopsy, and Dr. W. F. Duffy, the clerk at the autopsy.

The other two men are Samuel McCaw, Mrs. McCaw's husband and Leon McCaw, her stepson, whom she is accused of poisoning by putting arsenic in his food. Young McCaw, it is said, has almost fully recovered from the effects of the poison.

While no report of the finding of State Chemist F. W. Strickland, who examined the digestive organs of the body of Elsie McCaw, has been made public, it is generally believed that the calling of the special Grand Jury session is based upon his analysis. He made his examination to determine the cause of the girl's death and especially for the purpose of finding whether there was arsenic in the organs.

ALIEN ANARCHIST CASE HEARD IN FITCHBURG

POLICEWOMAN CLEARED OF CHARGES

Police Heads Drop Complaint Made Against Miss Delaney, Who Resigned

Charges brought against Miss Sabina J. Delaney, the Boston policewoman, who resigned because she was ordered to buy liquor in questionable places, have been dropped, according to a police headquarters announcement.

The charges against Miss Delaney were based on her failure to perform her duties between Monday night, when she told Captain Charles F. Reardon of the vice squad that she was through, and Tuesday afternoon, when she handed in her written resignation.

From official sources it was learned that the attitude of the police department toward women police buying liquor is that evidence against certain places can be secured in no other way. Miss Delaney, on the other hand, declares that women of the type that the department has demanded for such work cannot buy liquor in questionable places without in the end "making sacrifices." Men with stronger fibres in their characters are more fitted for such work, she claimed.

Sargent and Miss Willsey were married by the Rev. Alfred Wright. Mrs. Willsey sent a telegraphic demand to the Syracuse police to stop the marriage, but Miss Willsey was Mrs. Sargent before the police could get into action.

MISSING GIRL IS FOUND IN SALEM

Mother Takes Miss Conboy to Tell Story at Police Station in Lynn

Anna Elizabeth Conboy, the fifteen-year-old girl who mysteriously disappeared from the home of her step father, George Lee, No. 61 Liberty street, Lynn, last Monday, was found by her mother, Mrs. George Lee, at the home of a friend off Federal street, Salem. The girl was unharmed.

Mrs. Lee took her daughter to the Lynn Police Headquarters, where she told her story.

Ever since her child's disappearance, Mrs. Lee has been insistent that the girl had been spirited away by a well known Lynn man. She declared she had trailed this man from a food shop to a business block, where she lost him, but she was convinced he was taking food to the girl.

The police took the man into custody, but later released him.

The man, whose name the officials are withholding, said he had met the girl Monday evening in a restaurant, and that her story induced him to take her to a rooming house on Ireson street, where he gave her some money and left her. On his return to the house the following day, he declared, the girl had left, and he had not seen her since.

The girl's own account of her adventure supports both her mother's theory and the man's story in part. She said she met this man, and that, after walking about a while, he took her to the Ireson street address, giving her $5 and a large box of candy.

Shortly after eating some of the candy, she says, she became ill, and when morning came decided it would be better to leave at once. Before she could do this, she asserted, the man arrived and induced her to accompany him to a place in Salem.

There he left her again, telling her to stay until he got back, she said, when he declared he would take her to New Hampshire and then to New York.

Instead of obeying, she fled the house as soon as his back was turned and went to the home of some friends of her mother's, who sheltered her until today, when they telephoned to Mrs. Lee that the girl was with them.

MURDER CHARGE IN KILLING OF FIANCE

J. J. Pullen Accused of Slaying "Rival" in Somerville, Says Mind Was a Blank

John J. Pullen, 21 years old, was held without bail for the Grand Jury in the Somerville Court today, charged with the murder of Thomas F. Kiely, fiance of Miss Annie Croskery of No. 10 Rush street, Somerville, with whom Pullen was infatuated.

Pullen struck Kiely over the head with a hatchet and a milk bottle in Miss Croskery's home about a month ago. His case has been continued several times, awaiting the result of Kiely's injuries. The latter died this week, and a previous charge of assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to kill was today changed to that of murder.

Pullen was represented by Attorney Albert E. Hughes. He told his attorney that he had had trouble with Kiely previously and that the latter had threatened him. Pullen says his mind is a blank as to what happened on the night of the attack until he gave himself up to a policeman.

Kiely's funeral will be held tomorrow at the home of his brother in Medford. Miss Croskery, who was at his bedside when he died, will be among the mourners.

INFLUENZA IS SPREADING IN STATE

Dr. Kelley Sends Circular to Health Boards to Be on Guard

Influenza is increasing rapidly in Massachusetts, according to Dr. Leland M. French of the State Board of Health, who said that during the past two days 88 cases have been reported. The entire number reported last month was 158. The cases reported are principally in a mild form.

Forty-three new cases were reported yesterday and 46 thus far today. Those reported yesterday were: Boston, 15; Worcester, 9; Cambridge, 4; Andover, 3; Hudson, 3; Somerville, 2, Springfield, 2, and one each in Westport, Quincy, Chelsea, Haverhill, Malden and Revere.

In a circular letter sent out to local health boards by Dr. Eugene C. Kelley, director of the division of communicable diseases of the State Board of Health, he says:

"There is no doubt but that we are to experience in the next few weeks an undue incidence of influenza. Already a slight increase is to be found in our daily reports. More particularly is it probable that an outbreak will occur because influenza has been unduly prevalent in France and England and now in New York city. As you know, we have no specific medication for the prevention of the spread of this condition and must rely almost wholly on the exercise of personal hygiene.

"While Boston health officials do not consider the local situation alarming, they are making preparations to combat a possible epidemic here. To this end they have planned to act as a headquarters to provide medical and nursing care and transportation as was done in the epidemics of 1919 and 1920.

"At the least suspicion of having influenza, or of even having a cold, go to bed and stay there. Send for a doctor. Do not wait until tomorrow. Take a laxative. Drink much plain water. Take plenty of simple, light food, milk, eggs, toast and similar things. Have plenty of fresh air. Stay in bed at least forty-eight hours after you think you are well."

Urge United Boston War on Influenza

Eleven new cases of influenza since midnight and two deaths from lobar pneumonia, besides nine other cases of the latter disease, prompted health authorities today to rush circulars of warning to doctors and schools in Greater Boston to avoid an epidemic such as has reached New York.

Figures made public today showed that since January 1 seventy-four persons have died of lobar pneumonia and eight of influenza. Influenza has stricken 101 persons, lobar pneumonia 153.

In addition to sending out circulars, Health Commissioner William C. Woodward and his assistant, Dr. Victor M. Safford, issued a statement warning the public to beware of influenza or even a slight cold, stating the influenza epidemic in New York city where 1,063 cases have been reported within twenty-four hours.

125 District Nurses to Respond to Calls

In view of the advice of the health commissioner that as a safeguard against possible influenza, all people sick, even with common colds, should stay in bed until their temperature becomes normal, the Instructive District Nursing Association announces that 125 visiting nurses are located in fourteen stations in different sections of metropolitan Boston, ready to answer the call of any physician or person who needs them.

Telephone of all stations recorded in the telephone book. Office hours are 8.30 to 10 a. m. and 1.30 to 3.30 p. m., 6 to 8.30 p. m. Emergency calls may be sent to No. 581 Massachusetts avenue, B. B. 6470.

Fewer Influenza Cases Reported in New York

By Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 2.—Influenza and pneumonia cases, which have mounted each day for a week, slumped today.

The Health Department announced 859 cases of influenza as compared with 1,063 yesterday, and 185 of pneumonia, compared with 240.

Eight deaths from influenza were recorded, against twenty yesterday. There were sixty-six deaths from pneumonia yesterday, and the same today.

EXPERT SAYS COFFEE CONTAINED POISON

Worcester, Feb. 2.—Charles F. White, professor of chemistry at Clark University, was one of the chief witnesses for the State in the trial of William Lysiak of Oxford, who is on trial in Superior Court charged with attempting to poison his brother-in-law, John Chester. Professor White testified he examined coffee, which it is alleged Chester drank, and said the coffee contained enough poison to cause death.

HARDING WOULD HELP DISABLED IN NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., Feb. 2.—President Harding has heartily approved the plan of Colonel C. R. Forbes, director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, which includes the taking over of the extensive Naval Hospital establishment in this city for the care of disabled war veterans. Since the President has been active in promoting relief for disabled veterans, it is believed the administration will put through some plan whereby the Veterans Bureau will acquire this property.

HAND CUFFED DARE DEVIL FLIRTS WITH DEATH ON FAST PLANE

CANADA'S FIRST LADY "POL."! Miss Agnes McPhail, who was elected to the Canadian House of Commons, will shortly take office. She is the first woman to represent Southeast Grey, Ont., in Parliament.

GET A 'GATE ON! This young jockey, however, seems to be on the 'gator. Not many youngsters would like to go out for their morning gallop atop an alligator, but this little girl says the 'gators at the Jacksonville (Fla.) Alligator Farms are "the dearest things." (Wide World.)

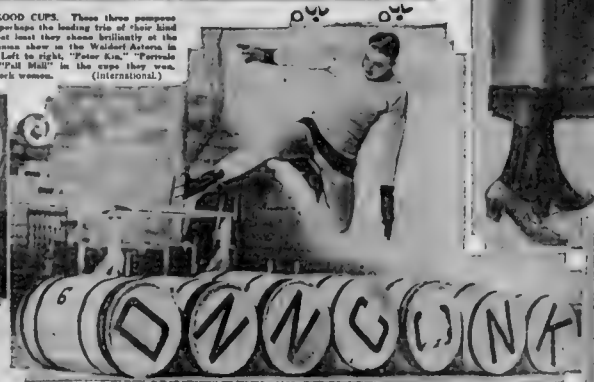
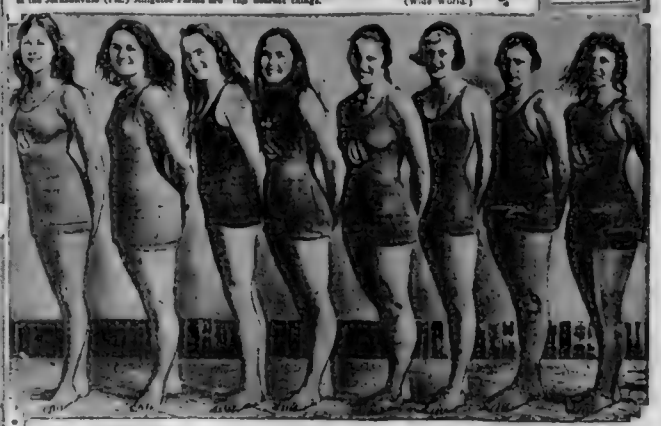
TWO MEALS A DAY, Plenty of Fresh Air and Little Medicine! These the longevity secret of Barr Spangler, president of the First National Bank, Marietta, Pa. He is just 100 and so the oldest banker in the country. (International.)



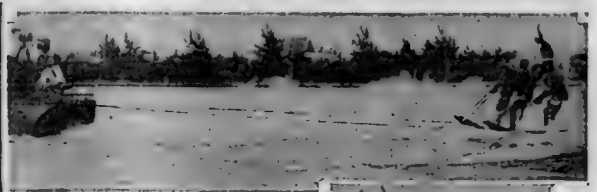
WOULD YOU CARE TO BACK THIS UP? The feature of this charming afternoon coat of tan twill is its blouse back, a distinctive fashion novelty. The garment's color value is greatly enhanced by the self-toned embroidery.



IT'S DIFFICULT TO DO THIS WITH A SKATE ON! But to Tom K. Milne, who holds the world's record for the Norwegian leap, jumping over 7 barrels is as easy as jumping a contract. Taken at Plattsburg, N. Y. This remarkable action picture caught the flier in midair. (Underwood.)

THEY'RE GONNA CREATE SOME SPLASH THIS SEASON! Los Angeles lost your produced several water champions, and many of them were members of the Los Angeles Swimming Club. These cuties belong to that organization and they are out to win more titles. Left to right, Marie Curtis, Viola Harriman, Dodie Stewart, Mary Wheeler, Thelma Finn, Helen Varnum, Dot Waters, Aileen Allen. Each one is a speed scrus, either in the dashes or long distance. (International.)

THERE'D BE A REASON for Getting the Cold Shoulder at the Ottawa (Canada) Ice Carnival! The Ice Palace is made of solid blocks of crystal ice, inside and out. When illuminated at night the effect is wonderful. (International.)



"AQUABATIC" PLANING! Here's the first photograph ever published showing five persons trailing a motorboat on two aquaplanes. It was taken off the shore at Miami, Fla., and shows the five daredevils in the process of pyramiding. Aquaplaning is an ideal breakfast appetizer. (Wide World.)

HERE IS ONE BETTER THAN THE OLD FLIVVER JOKE! They say a flivver is made of four tin cans and a hair spring—but these English boys go one better. An old iron bedstead was used to construct this baby tractor. Strangely enough, it developed remarkable power for such a little vehicle, and on one test pulled a wagonload of boys around a city block in London. Photo shows one of the inventors hauling the wagon. It created quite a sensation on its trip through the city streets. Recently exhibited at London Horticultural Show. (International.)

MISS ELSIE SMITH, 1273 Massachusetts Ave., Arlington, Mass., is the last, but not the least, winner in the Pretty Motorist Test. She will receive a check for $5. Readers are warned that the coming contest has been indefinitely postponed. All unused Motorist pictures and negatives will be returned at once.

PRETTY PORTIA PROGRESSES! Miss Frances M. Brandon is the first corporation counsel New York ever had. She has just been named assistant and has already taken office. Brilliant lawyer and tireless worker. Active on Red Cross during war. (International.)

FOR LADIES ONLY! Of course if some coke eater insists on reading this, there won't be any objection. This curious device above is not for making weed pee. It is a gun for the golfer. Not to shoot a rival when he laughs at your shot, but to make perfect lies without getting your hands dirty. Fill it with sand, press the trigger and it will emit a perfectly made tee of any desired size.

DIZZY DAREDEVIL DEFIES DEATH! Sauntering over a plane while in flight has become really monotonous among the crackee shot or daredevil gentry, so now in order to get a real thrill they have to do something like the stunt shown, performed by Wesley Mory, the craziest of all the crackees. Firmly handcuffed and with the plane hundreds of feet in the air, May did all of his old stunts on the machine, such as hanging from the wing sled and crawling from top to lower plane. Photo was taken at Los Angeles. (International.)

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

JOIE RAY MAKES A NEW RECORD IN MILE AND A HALF RACE

New York, Feb. 2.—B. S. Whitney of Harvard sprang a surprise when he defeated S. Harrison Thompson, of Princeton, national all-around champion, and H. E. Barron of Penn State, Olympic champion, in the fifty-yard high hurdle race at Madison Square Garden last night. Whitney got away from his mark like a flash and won with one yard to spare

Melvin Suttner won the Millrose 600 by four yards from a field of five starters. Jack Sellers of the New York A. C. was second, 15 yards in front of Dave Caldwell of the B. A. A. Tom Campbell of Yale, who was favored to win the race, was forced to retire after going two laps as he pulled a tendon.

Jimmy O'Brien of Loughlin Lyceum, the only other starter, shot out into the lead at the start and carried the field along at a fast pace. The Brooklyn lad held his lead for one lap when Sellers, closely followed by Campbell, attempted to pass him going around the turn. Sellers succeeded, but at this Campbell went lame and dropped back several yards. He attempted to follow the leaders, but was in too much pain.

Sellers held his lead until the 100 yards from the finish, when Suttner came from behind and pulled up on even terms with Sellers. They sprinted madly to the tape. Sellers was unequal to the up State boy's sprint and was beaten. O'Brien quit after going three laps.

* * *

Joie Ray, Illinois A. C., America's greatest miler, broke the American record for the one and a half mile run last night at the Millrose A. A. in Madison Square Garden, when he won the race in 6:43 2-5, clipping four seconds off the old record, which he held himself, and garner on January 24, 1917.

* * *

Ray not only won the race but received the cheers of the crowd when he received at the hands of H. Cutbill of Boston, when the flying parson finished first. Last night Ray finished one lap and twenty yards ahead of Cutbill, who finished third. E. O. Lane of Penn University was second, a lap behind Ray.

By his victory last night Ray has succeeded in winning this event five times, scoring successive victories in 1917, 1918, 1919 and 1920.

After the field of ten starters got away from their mark Eddie Garvey of the Pastime A. C. went into the lead. For three quarters of a mile Ray and Cutbill, who were right at his heels, permitted the local lad to set the pace.

At this point Eddie, who was evidently holding back, started out with a hard breaking stride, and Ray and Cutbill along with him.

In winning the two-thirds mile run Mike Devaney of the Millrose A. C. will get credit for an American indoor record for this distance, as he has to date the distance had never been run indoors in America. Devaney was clocked in 2 minutes 46 4-5 seconds. Joe Higgins of the New York A. C. finished second, five yards behind Devanney.

* * *

John L. Murphy of Notre Dame University joined the record breaking class when he leaped over the bar at a height of 6 feet 4¾ inches, raising a quarter of an inch the former American indoor record of 6 feet 4¼ inches held by Sam C. Lawrence of A. A. A., made on February 9, 1912.

The bar was raised to 6 feet 5⅝ inches in order to give Murphy a chance to make a new world's indoor record, but he failed to clear the bar in three attempts

Harvard Basketball Team Has Secret Practice

Secret practice is inaugurated in basketball at Harvard this afternoon. The Crimson is preparing for next Tuesday's game with Yale and needs to work up its offence in order to defeat the Blue. Hence a series of secret practices for the next few days. The team will work at Walker Gymnasium at Tech which is more like the Yale floor than Hemenway Gymnasium where Harvard plays.

SMITH A WINNER OVER PAUL IN EXTRA ROUND

Knockout Bob Wins Tech Elimination Bout for Tourney With West Point

Knockout Bob Smith at Tech received his first hard drubbing, when challenged by Fritz Paul in the elimination bouts staged at Walker Memorial before the boxing team goes to West Point for an engagement with the Army boxers Saturday.

The engineer of knockout fame encountered a lad who was able to give and take a lot of hard swatting. Left and right hooks and jabs in the face were exchanged in the first round. In the next round Smith found a good defence. He averred, however, a shade better than his opponent. The third period was so close the judges could not agree and so a fourth round was ordered

Two other classes were decided in the eliminations. Captain Ed Moll's place in the 148-pound class was questioned by L. A. Agnew, who lasted two rounds.

Mike Konrisky, who had been selected as the Institute man in the 160 pound class, was displaced by Frank Horgan after four slow rounds.

KEEPING YOUR CLUB AT CONCERT PITCH A GOLF SECRET

By JOCK HUTCHISON

Once each year the golfer should take an invoice of his stock of clubs. There is no better time to do this than in the early Spring. Golf is a hard enough game to play without adding any additional handicaps in the way of poor, warped, unsuitable tools.

Too many players brag of old favorites in their golf bag. The longer they keep a club in their possession the better it becomes they reason, but old golf clubs unless they are up-to-date are valuable for relics only.

* * *

Frequently a club can be made as good as ever by putting in a shaft. Of course, confidence in a club is a great asset.

* * *

A golfer was bragging recently about a driver he had had in his possession for over fifteen years. The clubhead was of no value but the shaft was still as straight and apparently just as serviceable as the first day he used the club.

* * *

There has always been more or less argument among the pros about the life of a hickory shaft. Some pros claim that a club a year old is useless, and, at the beginning of the season, they make up new clubs for tournament use.

* * *

They begin with them early in the Spring so as to get the feel of the new ones.

* * *

Some clubs a year old are worthless, and I might add that some shafts even a month old are ready for the scrap pile. This is on account of poor quality of hickory available at the present time.

* * *

There are many bad shafts used in clubs. It is hard for the average golfer to tell the difference when he buys a club. The pro is seldom fooled on this point.

* * *

When a box of shafts are received the painstaking clubmaker tests each and every one, and then the pro usually goes over the lot before they are put on the market and assorts and tests them himself.

The pro tests a shaft by snapping it. If the shaft is bent a little and it snaps back into shape quickly it usually is a good one. Weather affects all clubs. In a damp climate shafts will soften and break easily. In a warm, dry place they get hard and stiff.

* * *

My suggestion to the golfers who could not go South this Winter is that they take down their clubs and look them over before they start the Spring campaign

* * *

If you have been keeping your clubs in a steam-heated room, some of the life will be taken out of them.

* * *

There is one thing important to remember, and that is not to lean your bag of clubs up against the wall in such a position that the shafts will feel the strain

* * *

The best thing to do is to take the clubs out and hang each one up by tying a string to the handle.

* * *

If a club has been well varnished it will help to preserve the hickory, but a little oil of a very fine grade rubbed on the shafts will keep out the moisture better than anything else.

* * *

Golf clubs are no expensive these days it is a shame to ruin a good one through lack of care. It does not hurt to get clubs wet, but when the game is finished they should be carefully wiped off.

* * *

Some golfers go fishing for golf balls that they have played into a pond with their drivers. The clubhead makes good soaking and becomes easy to break when it dries out.

* * *

It may not be necessary to buy any new golf balls at the beginning of the season, but the clubs on hand should be carefully looked over. Some play has hate to buy new clubs because they are afraid to take the time to try it out.

Old favorites are more dependable they think, but a player will make more progress with his game unless he takes his clubs seriously. I mean by this that your set of clubs may be good enough, but you may do even better with other styles.

* * *

There was a golfer who played a very good game and who felt that he would be helpless if even one of his pets were missing. One day he lost the entire kit and was forced to purchase new ones. He received the most pleasant shock of his life when the new clubs began to work much better for him than the ones he figured as prosperous.

* * *

I heard of a player who bought a brand new set of shiney clubs and couldn't hit a shot with them. A friend took old mid iron in which was a new shaft.

"Try this one," said the friend

The results were so good the duffer traded his bag of new clubs for the old mid iron.

If you have a tool with which you are getting good results, take it and have it duplicated when the time comes to retire it on pension.

The English claim with the ribbed faced club it is possible for the duffer to go out and buy a set of clubs and a golf game with it. I have tried to teach lots of duffers in my time and I have never seen the clubs that would do the trick. I would like to have the agency for them. I would clean up.

Another golfer, who was badly off his game, had to take heroic measures to get back again. He decided to play every round with a different set borrowed from the pro or some of his friends.

He was surprised to find his game returning and surprised also to know that he had long had the wrong idea about what style of clubs he should use.

Most pros who play championship golf use a driver with a brass sole This protects the bottom of the club I'm not a believer in having my clubs cleaned so much that some of the weight is taken off the irons. Clubs cleaned every day or so with sand paper or an emery wheel take off a certain amount of the steel

Vardon once had a pet midiron that he had cleaned so much it became almost useless because of its reduced weight. He was forced to add a little piece to the back to give it the weight it originally carried

Some golfers never have their clubs cleaned at all and prefer to let them rust, claiming that they will hold the ball better than a club with a slick face. Every club should have some marking on the face to grip the ball. The corrugations need not be large, but they should be deep enough to be of some service.

This is important with the beginner who has not learned the proper art of going through after the ball. Beginners are apt to let the clubs that connect across the ball, usually causing a bad slice

Golf a Great Game for Schoolboys, Says M. Briand

Paris, Feb. 2.—Golf has no attraction for M. Briand, former Premier. The "bug" that finds so many victims in America and England failed to affect him when he tried the game at Cannes under the tutelage of Mr. Lloyd George, is has become known.

"It is a game for schoolboys," M. Briand told the British Premier, who is an ardent goofer. "Englishmen never cease to be children. Cannot you enjoy a country walk without hitting a silly little ball?"

SOMERVILLE LOSES TO MALDEN HOCKEY TEAM

Malden improved its standing in the Greater Boston Interscholastic Hockey League by winning over Somerville High, 3 to 1. Somerville fans were disappointed. It was an exciting contest.

Malden was first to score when Upham took the puck out of the scrimmage and skated towards the Somerville goal. He was closely followed by Locke. Roberts, Somerville defenseman was drawn out of his net enough for Upham to pass to Locke, who shot the rubber in with little trouble.

Captain Dressser of Somerville tied up the game, on a beautiful shot from centre ice. He took the puck from behind the goal and skated past the first line defence. His shot had perfect direction, slipping by Cowin for the only goal Somerville got.

With but two minutes to go Malden's combination of Upham and Locke raced up the ice with

WELL-BALANCED TEAM GIVES HYDE PARK VICTORY

By FRED C. LANE

Hyde Park put on a well balanced track team in the triangular meet with Mechanic Arts and West Roxbury at the East Armory yesterday and won the meet with a total of 95 points. Mechanic Arts was second with 68⅔ and West Roxbury trailed with 58⅓.

Although Hyde Park won only seven first places in the three divisions the ability of their athletes to run the second and third places in all divisions put it out front with a comfortable lead.

The winning by Coach Daley's charges came as a surprise to followers of the sport who had looked for Mechanics or West Roxbury to win. The Hyde Park team was the smallest but old members proved place winners.

* * *

The battle for second place was nip and tuck between the other teams with Mechanic Arts winning out because of its showing in the senior events. The attendance was purposely small considering the keen rivalry that exists among all three schools.

* * *

In the senior events Hyde Park's representatives excelled. Not an event was hotly contested. Barney McDermott opened up such a gap in the 1,000-yard run that Coach Daley was confident he could win so easily Clark of Hyde Park proved the good so handily that he trotted home.

TOM GIBBONS IS PICKED TO BEAT M'CARTHY

By JACK CONWAY.

Patrick J. McCarthy, twenty-four years of age, pride of Roxbury and known as the "John L. of 1922," will receive his big opportunity to gain a place in the well-known Hall of Fame when he opposes Tom Gibbons of St. Paul in a ten-round conflict at the Faneuil A. C.'s show at Mechanics Building tonight.

Pat can write his name in the headlines from here to Sydney, Australia, and then over to Bombay, India, and around the world back to Boston again if he smashes his way to victory over the man who is feared by Georges Carpentier and whom even doughty Jack Dempsey doesn't care to give consideration.

McCarthy will receive what the fiction writers delight in referring to as the BIG opportunity. Of course, everybody in Boston, especially those citizens who reside in Roxbury, are acquainted with McCarthy and his ring record. But there are a lot of birds who pick poppies and things over in India who never heard of the local hero. But if Pat can wallop Gibbons they'll hand him a place in the same tent with Gunga Dhin and the other Indian one-snipers.

So, fellow Indians and plain everyday fight fans, you will be permitted to be eyewitnesses of the McCarthy surge for everlasting fame and gelt this p. m.

According to John Francis Mahony there will be a young mob on hand to witness the ceremonies. Some of the folks will journey to Mechanics Building merely to get a squint at this Gibbons person, while others will want to be there so that they can give the facts to the coroner in the event that McCarthy starts a race war in Bombay or St. Paul or some other place.

* * *

It is funny how the different species of fight fans always have a different reason for attending a bout.

We have the birds out in Roxbury who have it all doped out where Gibbons is an overrated fighter and who want to see by how much McCarthy is going to beat him by. This delegation will be decked out in bean blowers and horns and enthusiasm and possibly a supply of hip oil.

Then there are the learned gentlemen who consider Gibbons future thing and who are out to see how many rounds it will take him to eliminate the Roxbury sultry.

And last there are the regular fight fans who figure this is going to be a torrid engagement and who want to be numbered among those present when the fur and the punch goes over, regardless of whether it is a Gibbons or a McCarthy sock.

* * *

Eddie Kane, manager of Gibbons, thinks his protege will be under 175 pounds when he enters the ring. Jimmy Carroll, manager of McCarthy, says his man will scale at 173 pounds. Therefore, there won't be a whole lot of difference in the tonnage of the rival warriors.

* * *

The dope says Gibbons will win, but it also wised us up to the fact that Mike Gibbons could beat Tommy Robson and that the latter would crush Nate Siegel. And you gentlemen who play the favorites right across the board can tell the world that the draw was very much wrong on these occasions.

* * *

The bout means much to Gibbons. If McCarthy wears to win, St. Paul Tommy would have to forget all about his dream of becoming the heavyweight champion of the world.

* * *

Johnny McGann, who is in charge of the Faneuil Club's office at No. 39 Court street, reports a healthy demand for ringside seats.

* * *

Tommy Nee was the only New England bantamweight who cared to have anything to do with Freddy Madden. These two boys will settle their ring differences when they mingle in the feature tussle of ten rounds at the Casino A. C. of Lynn next Monday night.

GUILFORD ADDS ANOTHER TO HIS TITLES

Wins Mid-Winter Golf Championship Tourney at the Miami Country Club

Miami, Fla., Feb. 2—Jesse Guilford, national amateur golf champion, added another championship to his string of titles, in winning the annual mid-Winter golf tournament at the Miami Country Club, where he defeated T. W. Palmer of Miami, runner-up, in a 36-hole match, 5 and 4. His prize was a silver cup.

At the end of the morning round of 18 holes, Guilford was 4 up on Palmer. In the second round Palmer started a birdie 4 on the first hole, which gave him a win. Guilford hooked his tee shot going to the second, but reached the green from the rough with his mashie. Palmer's drive was satisfactory, but he played his second into a deep trap guarding the green.

After deliberating a bit, he played an explosion shot from the trap and the ball came to rest within a foot of the cup. This seemed to upset the champion somewhat, as he promptly proceeded to ring up three putts, losing the hole and cutting his lead to two.

On the third hole Palmer's tee shot was weak and he left himself with a long brassie to reach the green. Guilford got away one of his longest shots, about 250 yards, against a strong head wind, which left him with a short mashie niblick to the green. Palmer putted poorly and Jesse took the hole.

Guilford also won the fourth, having hooked his tee shot he played an exceptionally fine shot out of the rough Palmer, driving into a brook guarding the hole, finally made it in 6 and won it down again. Guilford maintained that lead and the match ended on the 32nd green.

Guilford's longest drive was made on the 14th hole when he sent a fine one straight ahead for 310 yards.

MEDBURY

Says a Parisian Flea May Hop on You in French, but He'll Bite You in Broken English

Parisian scientists are producing all right in Paris, but a flea may bite in French and eat in English.

The fleas are brought up properly in France, and if one of them ever bites you, you'll know he wasn't educated abroad.

But every time one of them bites you you can't stop to ask him for his citizenship papers.

No matter what tongue they bite you in, you can scratch him in any language.

Every home could have educated fleas if they'd train them properly. All you have to do is to put them in a glass case and feed them on milk.

He may wander away from one house on a Fox Terrier but he'll come home on an Airedale.

A lot of fleas are so far advanced that they've taken up aviation. They ride on nothing but ducks.

They get so used to milk that they'll flies which will not bite. This is fine for three days on a can of cocoanut cream waiting for you to come with a can opener.

Of course there are different classes of French fleas. Some of them come to this country on first class passenger and others travel steerage.

He was so particular that he even went down to the steamship office and looked at the passenger list to see what boat he was going on.

When the flea arrived in France all of his friends were down to the dock to meet him. They all started to ride up town on the same guy and started such a fuss that he made them all get off.

The Parisian scientists are doing great work, and it will certainly be a relief to get bitten by a flea that has been educated.

CASEYS AND UNICORN WILL MEET THE ARENA ICE

The B. A. A. and Pere Marquette K. C. hockey teams will burn up the Arena ice between 8.15 and 10 o'clock tonight in their mad scramble to win the game in the United States League series.

Every time Pere Marquette plays fans see a real game of thrills, spills and mills. Their eagerness to win makes the Knights a popular aggregation.

The Caseys need to win to remain in the fight for the championship. In the present standing the B. A. A. and Westminsters lead Synnott's crew by a half game.

The game will be kept within the bounds of clean hockey. Referee Gerald Wiggett of Sherbrooke, Que., has been imported especially for the occasion.

A happy feature in connection with the game is the return of Ned Bigelow and Alec Campbell to their respective lineups. Ned has fully recovered from a wrenched back sustained in the last Knights game. Campbell has had the two remaining stitches removed from a wound in his foot.

One Doty will start in the Unicorn defense. He is not the most graceful looking performer on the ice, but fans don't see many forwards get by him

CHAMPION GOLFERS ONLY FOR BROOKLINE MEET

Golfers who desire to compete in the national amateur championship next Summer at Brookline will have to convince the eligibility committee of the United States Golf Association that they are of championship caliber, for James D. Standish, Jr., of Detroit is making up a card of all possible players from which all but first raters will be eliminated before the tournament.

Standish, who is chairman of the eligibility committee, has arranged to obtain all possible information as to the scoring abilities of all the leading players in the country.

While it is the desire of the committee that every low handicap golfer shall have a chance to wrest the amateur championship from Jesse Guilford, it has been decided that the hitherto unwieldly fields shall be reduced to conceders who may have a reasonable chance of at least qualifying for match play.

While considerable effort was made last year to weed out obviously inferior golfers, the number of entrants still was so large last year at St. Louis that the tournament had to be extended over eight days, the first of which was devoted to ousting all but the best sixty-four.

Experience has shown that nearly half of those who enter the qualifying round have no chance of surviving.

By CHARLES E. PARKER

Such is the assertion of Harvard men familiar with the ability of the Crimson quartet which Coach Bill Bingham is preparing for the annual B. A. A. games at the Boston Arena, and it comes as a distinct surprise to the many who have been conceding Yale the victory by a wide margin.

The Eli team, with such high-sounding names as Tommy Campbell, Mal Douglas, Fred Hilles and Vandergrift in its list, has been named the favorite for the Crimson-blue relay by virtually every track follower. The question has been not whether, but by how great a margin will Yale win. The Elis themselves are supremely confident and their rooters ditto.

* * *

The latter, however, was the case last Fall when a certain football game was played in the Harvard Stadium. And Harvard is now planning to subject the Elis to another terrific shock.

* * *

Crimson followers remark on the fact that with the exception of Campbell, the Eli runners who will face Harvard are distance men, whose ability over so short a route as the half mile is uncertain, and certainly not likely to prove record breaking.

They look for Harvard's one, two, three men to hold their own at least, and pave the way for Billie Burke, the Crimson anchor, to start at even terms or better with Tommy Campbell. And with such a start Harvard is counting on victory.

It seems Billie Burke has been showing 'em things across the river. Billie always has been an excellent mile and half-mile runner. He proved that before he entered Notre Dame; proved it after he entered the Indiana college, and has continued proving since his transfer to Harvard. And this year he is adding emphasis in large, healthy chunks.

* * *

According to one Harvard man Billie has been clocked in two minutes, one second, over the half-mile course, and when an athlete is making that time on a board track of a dozen or more laps to the mile, he is traveling wonderfully fast. It is because of that fact and the foregoing that Harvard smiles as it reads the high regard in which the Eli team's chances are held.

* * *

With such able performers in the pole vault as Gardner of Yale, the intercollegiate champion; Kjourek of the Illinois A. C., and Harwood of the B. A. A., both of whom were members of the recent American Olympic team, many are the spouting a new indoor pole vault record before that event is completed on Saturday night.

"BACK PAY"

The Story of a Girl's Soul Redeemed Through Love

A Serial of a Country Girl Who Seeks Happiness in the Maelstrom of the Metropolis

SYNOPSIS

"BACK PAY" is the story of Hester Bevins, a country girl with a "crepe de chine" soul, and Jerry Newcombe, who loved Hester with a love that surmounted every obstacle.

Hester lives in a small town where the people with whom she is compelled to associate at Mrs. Simmons' boarding house annoy her with their stupid ideas. Her one friend in town is Jerry Newcombe, who drives the delivery wagon for Finlay's general merchandise store. Jerry has fallen very much in love with Hester, but the narrow, dull life of the country town is so boring that she cannot bring herself to promise to marry him and settle down for life and become like her table companions at the boarding house.

Hester's nerves are tried to the breaking point, and she finally decides that she must give up this deadening life which she has suffered for eight years and try to get along in New York city. She parts with Jerry and leaves the town.

A time period in New York and then Mr. Wheeler, millionaire, furniture, was Jerry goes to war, and returns blind, gassed and blinded, and Hester, the old love revived, goes to him. She asks Wheeler for permission to marry Jerry, to be his wife until he died.

["Back Pay" has been created into an unusual photoplay by Cosmopolitan Productions; direction of Frank Borzage; scenario by Frances Marion; it has been released as a Paramount picture.)

Screen Version Novelized

By Jane McLean

WITH an effort she sang:

In the gloaming, oh, my darling,
Think not bitterly of me;
Though I pass away in silence,
Left you lonely, set you free.

The words stifled her—she rose and brushed her eyes; the withstrewn pressure from his hand caused Jerry—Hester—Hester—you're going on——"

For my heart was crushed with longing;
What had been could never be;
It was best to leave you thus, dear,
Best for you and best for me.

Bounce; the rays of the sun slowly drawing away as though some angelic guardian of the span of gold were folding up the bridge at the behest of a greater power beyond.

Hester looked out—seemed to see Jerry alert as he was in life; tall, manly, eyes shining on the far side of that broad red beam, beckoning to her.

She turned her head sharply. "Jerry, dear," softly not to startle him; no answer—"Jerry, Jerry," no answer. She buried her face in the coverlet and wept. No need to fear disturbing Jerry now.

Jerry was buried in the little cemetery on the outskirts of Demopolis; every store was shut during the time of the funeral, and the boys and girls were excused from school in march behind the flag draped coffin of their hero.

No one noticed Hester, a solitary figure riding in the one village hack; rather a chilly day, gray and lowering as though the heavens, too, were mourning the passing of a man.

Memories of another ride came to Hester; a May Day that seemed aeons away; as she looked out of the window the old scenes came before her; it was some comfort to remember them; to imagine Jerry sitting beside her in the glen and telling her simply that he cared; the spell.

And at the grave in the bush that accompanied the last words; in the silence between the dropping clods Hester did not mourn grief that the earth had claimed its own; she saw, instead, the glorified Jerry moving across the red span of sunlight beckoning to her.

"You're a trump," he said. "Poor devil—I'm sorry, Hester—I sent an ambulance to the Red Cross—in your name—but I could do—try to forget, little girl."

"I'm very tired, Wheeler."

"Of course you are, you've been through enough to kill a man—take it easy now and after a while you'll feel more like your old self."

Kitty came in—eyed—other men and women she had known—none of them in her secret, save Wheeler and Kitty. Those others held her, understood she'd been away. Glad she was back.

How about a dance? Now the war was over let joy reign unconfined. Speed turned on the phonograph—the big piece de resistance in a whirl of motion. Hester looked on. Wheeler took her arm. "Told them you were out of town, least I could do—what they don't know won't hurt 'em."

To Be Continued Tomorrow

In the lives of those who desert the village for the gayety of the city there often comes a longing for the sunshine and quiet of the life back home. Hester Bevins often felt what amounted to a craving for the joys of the days before the lure of the metropolis had entrapped her.

KEEPING THE BODY FIT

—By Brice Belden, M. D.—

DURING and after middle age it behooves us to look more carefully to our oxidation, elimination and diet, since otherwise what might be called our "cylinders" will become clogged with carbon and thus be hampered in the performance of their functions.

When we say carbon we are speaking advisedly, since many of the waste products and poisons produced in the course of the body's activities are actually compounds in which the basic element is carbon. So it will be seen that the comparison of the clogged human organism with the carbon-befouled automobile is not at all a far-fetched one.

In cleaning out an automobile, or furnace, you can withhold fuel and stop all operations completely, but the human machine can only be cleaned out while running and performing all its manifold functions. We can, however, slow the mechanism down a great deal by restricting the diet. Then by simple measures we can stimulate elimination. Finally, we can increase oxidation, which is the process by which the body burns up its clogging carbon, through more exercise and fresh air.

Whenever one suffers from symptoms of auto-intoxication it means that one should go into the repair shop for a little while. It is far better to keep the human machine in proper running order by a bit of timely tinkering now and then than to wait until chronic poisoning produces organic changes in vital organs and then attempt to restore such definitely damaged organs to their normal condition. Unfortunately, we can not, as yet, install "new parts" in the human system.

Our greatest danger resides in eating too much. As wet gat older we need much less fuel to run our "engines."

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

ROMANCE OF NEWLY WEDDED LIFE

By Ann Lisle

Copyright, 1921, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

WE met at the time and place appointed, greeted each other with the brief friendliness two men might have shown, and then found a table and gave a concise and simple order. After that I got down to the business of the day.

"I've news for you," I announced. "But first I want to fire two questions at you: Any news of Jim? And any returns from the Arkansas country?"

Mabel is Anxious

"Your husband isn't near a post office just now, that's clear. For evidently you suffer from the same shortage of mail the office is enduring," she smiled. "But the Arkansas matter is splendidly taken care of, thanks to your promptness and bank account. I paid off the note. That little strip of land I have such a queer hunch about is still in the possession of Harrison & Company."

"Need any more money?"

I tossed it off lightly, though with thumping heart. The future of the office I had pledged myself to establish actually depended upon her reply. If Jim's business needed my next rent check for the apartment how could I let myself in for the expense of starting an office—and yet how could I fail to pursue the course to which I'd committed myself? For a moment I faced the problem of borrowing the money on which to finance my beginning as an advertising consultant. Then Mabel Storr's strong, resonant voice replied to my question concerning the affairs of Harrison & Co:

"I'm all right—not only for the present but for the future, too. That I'll promise myself, rather than you, you brave, ever-ready person. I've fallen down on the job once by letting you bear the burdens Mr. Harrison wanted you saved from. And yet I don't seem to be properly ashamed—since it has put us on a footing of understanding. No, Mrs. Harrison, no more loans. No more financing by you. I'm going to see this through now—if I have to do it on a shoestring."

"Good for you!" I laughed. "And now you must listen to the tale of how I plan to see a job of my own through on—a shoestring."

"What are you up to now?" questioned Mabel Storr eagerly.

"You sound as if you were ready to say 'Go to it!' and yet only a little while ago you had qualms about my going back to Raidance," I bantered.

"I didn't know you then," she returned evasively. "I didn't realize that you aren't the clinging vine I'd expected to find. I know you now as a self-reliant, sturdy woman who has to do her bit and have some form of self-expression, even though she's found the love of her life."

"And did you think I was the sort of woman to fold my hands and sit back, expecting to be taken care of and looked after all the rest of my life, even when the man I love up against it good and plenty?" I asked trying to push into the background of my consciousness another question I didn't intend to cry aloud at any cost.

The query I wouldn't make was: "And if you do think I'm a sheltered-life darling—where did you get that impression? Who gave it to you? Was it my husband?"

But this was Mabel Storr's reply to the question I put to her—the question I choked back with an ache in my throat:

"I thought a man of Mr. Harrison's position and traditions would be likely to marry a lily of the field. And his concern for you made me sure that you weren't the sort who ought to be permitted to go banging up against reality. Your revelation that you'd worked before your marriage and the way you actually bent me to your will and made me take the money for the note a couple of weeks ago told me the facts about you. Of course your husband didn't have the time to explain you to me—even if he can be supposed to have had the inclination to stop and interpret his wife—to an employe."

And Anne Explains

"You wonderful girl!" I cried. "You know just what to say and just when to say it. But if you ever again call yourself an 'employe' in the tone of that and nothing more—I'll see about having you enjoined. And now to prove that we're friends and that the friendship is based on something besides Harrison & Co.—listen to Anne. I'm about to go in business on my own account. I have three advertising accounts to handle and I'm about to become an advertising consultant. What do you think of that?"

"So that's why you began by asking if I needed more money?"

Amazed at this reply I stared at her and then we both burst out laughing.

"We're a couple of shrewd ones," she went on, after a breathless interval. "Now sit down and let's bow and scraped and been formal kids and so let off steam we ought to be ready for the real work at hand tackle. I think you're a wonder and I know you'll be a success. Here's to you, Anne Harrison, and if there's a thing in my world I can do to help all you have to do is to say so."

Oh, you need not dis-treat yureself over that dreem of mine, sed Ma. I can buy the hat out of my allowance, sed Ma. Least let my dreems annoy you, sed Ma. Not for the world wud I have them annoy you, sed Ma.

Dont talk it so hard, sed Pa. I suppose wen the time cums I will buy you as nice a Easter hat as any of the ladies is waring, sed Pa.

I am plessed, sed Pa. I was merely reemarking that you need not worry about Easter hats until Easter is here.

A year of this stimulating experience in a new college environment should be worth more to your girl than three or four years in the old home environment, either in college or out. Do not count the cost in money. It is ten times better at her age to put money liberally into the character of your girl than to put it into her purse for material harshining.

From 17 to 20 is the age of plasticity for a girl. After that she begins to get almost too serious for rapid making over. So parents are admonished to hurry their daughter off for about a two-year period at college while every new move means so much.

Wolseley and Gordon.

There was nothing that Wolseley loved better than to recount the adventure of his seeing Gordon off to the Soudan on November 18th, 1883, and his dramatic connection with the London railway-station, says Edmund Gosses, in an appreciation of Lord Wolseley. Gordon was settled in the train when Wolseley asked: "By the way, General, I suppose you have plenty of money?" "Not a penny!" And Wolseley, adds Mr. Gosses, would recount how he dashed in a hansom to his bank, and brought back the banknotes just in time for the indifferent Gordon to slip them into his pocket as the train went off.

As a Widow Says—

IT'S all wrong!" exclaimed the Bachelor, sinking gratefully down beside the Widow. "Give me air! You can't tell a married woman from any other kind, any more! Half of them don't wear wedding-rings; some of them don't use their husband's names; all of them dress like flaming papers, and——"

"What have you been doing now?" interrupted the Widow suspiciously.

"Oh—just trying to make life pleasanter," explained the Bachelor, "for that little pink and yellow person in the half-portion frock, under the impression that she was a Winter Garden girl out for a lark. Then her husband came up, and—and interrupted her."

"I knew it!" declared the Widow with conviction. "I wish I had!" groaned the Bachelor.

"That," said the Widow, waving her ostrich feather fan toward the ballroom, where the "pink and yellow person" stood surrounded by half a dozen men, "is the most devoted little wife in town. And forty—if she's a day!"

"So I discovered," conceded the Bachelor, with a wry, sad smile. "But why doesn't she behave like it? How is a poor, innocent, unsophisticated Bachelor to know a devoted wife from a chorus girl, nowadays? It used to be easy to spot a married woman."

"Yes," laughed the Widow. "By her stood-in-the-corner' expression; by her 'life-is-all-over-with-me' attitude; by her frumpiness, frowsiness, primness, dreariness, and dullness!' But, thanks to Heaven and the alarm clocks, that is all changed, now."

"And the most effective alarm-clock," chuckled the Bachelor, "is ANOTHER woman!"

"Oh no!" said the Widow. "Sometimes, another MAN will do quite as well. Don't feel so conscience-stricken about your little contretemps with the pink and yellow lady. SHE NEEDED all your devotion at that moment."

"What!" The Bachelor sat up.

"I had just finished—finished talking to her very clever husband, when you arrived," explained the Widow. "He left me to find out what you were saying to his wife. YOU were his alarm-clock, Mr. Cutting!"

"It strikes me," reflected the Bachelor, "then, altogether, we have spent a very helpful and altruistic evening—scattering sweetness and light."

"Yes," sighed the Widow. "But our altruism will never be appreciated. NOBODY loves an alarm-clock!"

Spanish Cream

Soak 1 even tablespoon of granulated gelatine in ½ cup of cold water and heat in a double boiler with 1 pint of milk, ½ cup of sugar and a pinch of salt. Beat the whites of 2 eggs stiff and slide into another bowl for further use. Now beat the 2 yolks in the first bowl before washing the beater in order that you may not lose any of the beaten whites of egg clinging to the beater or side of the bowl. Now blend carefully the hot mixture in the double boiler with the yolks, and boil until you have a thick custard. Pour into another bowl; let stand until it stops steaming, then add ½ teaspoon of vanilla and the whites of the egg. Set in a cool place.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

—By Beatrice Fairfax—

Love or Jealousy

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty and in love with a man one year my senior. In our childhood we were great pals. About five years ago we stopped speaking and have not spoken since. He is now going about with a young lady, and you can't imagine how brokenhearted I am. I now realize the great error I made. for I love him dearly. I don't believe he knows of my love for him, and I know he cares for me, for he has told my sister and some of my friends.

Can you please tell me what is best to do in my case?

HEARTBROKEN.

ARE you sure that you love the man? Isn't the emotion that impels you one of jealousy? You didn't want the young man's friendship until someone else had it. And now you can't bear to see another girl enjoying what you didn't value. Suppose you did break off his friendship with a girl who may care for him deeply—how do you know you wouldn't quarrel again and take refuge in stubbornness? You haven't spoken to the man for five years. How do you know you like him as he is and not an ideal you've made up for yourself? Be square and honest enough to think of the other girl as well as of yourself.

COLLEGE FOR GIRLS

WAY TO BREAK OLD HABITS

By W. A. McKeever

"And why is that?" I asked the father. "To break up old habits and to start the girl to thinking for herself," was the interesting reply.

That idea is right, and it should be passed on as a admonition to all parents of high school graduates. To go to college—that is a big incident in the life of an ordinary young woman. Here was a good girl who had grown up in an environment which held her in its grip.

The same set of friends, the same kind of social affairs, the same things always expected of her—same, same—the staleness of the good old home place holds many a bright girl back. Nobody expects her to be anything but her same young self.

Now, send this seventeen-year-old away beyond the sight or call of a single familiar person, and, presto! She is a new creature. Before entering the strange college environment your happy young daughter perhaps has the first thrill of her life in the thought of presenting a new self to those who will take her seriously.

And to start the girl to thinking for herself is another purpose of the home-leaving of the girl. That, again, is well worth the cost in money. Young people will never learn independence of thought or action so long as they remain under the daily care and solicitude of the parents. Whereas, at the distant school they must try out their own decisions. It is better to blunder in judgment at this early age, and so finally learn how to decide than to linger indefinitely on easy subject of parental authority.

It matters little where the college is located for the whole-year young daughter studies. What you want is sufficient "weaning" distance and a college environment that will offer your girl a balanced program of human experience—a healthy place for her play-time and leisure; a moderate amount of attention to study and work; social opportunities free as possible from the fuss and cabaret types of influence; a regular active attendance at the church which suits her temperament.

A year of this stimulating experience in a new college environment should be worth more to your girl than three or four years in the old home environment, either in college or out. Do not count the cost in money. It is ten times better at her age to put money liberally into the character of your girl than to put it into her purse for material harshining.

From 17 to 20 is the age of plasticity for a girl. After that she begins to get almost too serious for rapid making over. So parents are admonished to hurry their daughter off for about a two-year period at college while every new move means so much.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

IT'S fine to buy two dozen socks whenever fancy urges, to get Havanas by the box and suits of twills and serges. It's fine to go from place to place and shop with vim and ardor, to purchase groceries by the case to clutter up the larder. It's fine to murmur: "Charge it, please," and take ten pounds of butter, with artichokes and fancy cheese, although you're a grocer mutter. But, while this seems a lovely plan, at least in the beginning, the grocer and the laundry man are bound to have their inning. Though you delay for many moons, and fancy you are slowly going broke, for peaches and prunes; things can't be charged forever. Oh, witless wights who run in debt, your judgment should be riper; you'll have to pay these people yet, the plumber and the piper. For silken shirts and underwear, for sundry acts of folly, a pay day's certain to appear to make you melancholy. Although you may not think it now, you'll pay from A to Izzard; for hours you wasted learning to dance the Crawling Lizard, for fables that you told your boss, for laws that you evaded, for house you made a total loss and truths that you faded. So, when you while the hours away and purchase purple raiment, be sure you cannot get away with it, in time for interment. And while you gaily play along with nonchalance and laughter, remember—life can't be all song, a pay day's coming after!

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By S. C. FORBES

New York, Feb. 2.—It's pleasant to be able to talk about profits, as pleasant to have to talk about losses.

Unfortunately, during the next few months a great many heads of business enterprises will have to face shareholders at annual meetings and present statements showing losses during 1921.

* * *

Some recent financial statements were so concocted that they looked quite well on the surface, but revealed ugly features when thoroughly analyzed.

Such tactics are unwise. They are extremely shortsighted. Any concern that has been badly stricken is not strengthened one iota by juggling the actual figures in a way designed to mislead. In business, as in other walks of life, the truth is best in the end. Losses honestly incurred during a period such as the whole country has been through recently are no disgrace. The frank admission and revealing of such losses tends, not to foster nervousness, but to inspire confidence in the courage of those at the helm, whereas juggling, when ultimately discovered, creates intense distrust and brings odium upon those responsible.

* * *

Few industries had harder going last year than the country's largest industry, apart from agriculture. Do you know which industry that is? Nine persons of ten would probably reply, "Iron and steel." They would be wrong.

Our largest industrial industry, on the basis of slaughtering and meat packing. The latest annual figures available (for 1919) give this industry status as aggregating $3,714,240,000 whereas the iron and steel total was only $2,812,775,000.

* * *

Now, when the largest company in America's largest industry held its annual meeting, there was not only an explanatory statement by the President, but the Treasurer presented the financial results in language so clear that any small investor, or any employe, could understand. Treasurer L. A. Carton set forth in detail the individuals and the company referred to, in his address to the 700 stockholders present, after reading the balance sheet figures, he was followed by well-known firm of public accountants, explained:

"The figures show that the debts of the company are over $69,000,000 LESS than at the beginning of the year and our quick assets are over two to one of our liabilities, excepting only the bonds which do not mature until 1944. They also show close that the net profits for the month of our last fiscal year, representing $20,000,000 shrinkage in our inventory, less approximately $13,000,000 gained on sale of our products, plus $12,000,000 paid you in dividends.

"Our net loss in business therefore was only $8,000,000. But your directors felt that they should give you dividends out of previous years' earnings, with the result stated.

* * *

"During the last two years Swift & Company has been obliged to stand a shrinkage in inventory and adjustment of over $70,000,000 that they might stay in trade, help feed the world, give annual employment to our 51,000 persons, to whom they paid wages and salaries of over $45,000,000, so don't believe there is a stockholder among us who does not heartily approve of his or her company's course.

* * *

"You all know that the business in which your company is engaged is the greatest ever. That is one of the reasons we all are in it. It does no one any harm to throw a few bouquets to ourselves—we occasionally are recipients of some considerate missiles, sorry am I to say it, the latest coming from those to whom your company continued to pay about 1,200 wages when it might have saved itself from loss by shutting down the plant."

* * *

After quoting figures emphasizing the magnitude of the slaughtering and packing industry, and after emphasizing the important part the industry must play towards rehabilitating the world, Treasurer Carton concluded:

"You have heard of the Irishman prospecting for gold who abandoned his claim after digging to a certain depth. Another man came along, dug two feet deeper, struck the vein of gold both had been looking for, clearing title, the first man exclaimed, 'I will never abandon a claim again until I dig two feet further.' DIGGING is what brings results."

* * *

It is important that not only shareholders but the employes of corporations be given lucid, understandable, straightforward facts about the profits or losses of their concerns during the year. The majority of American workmen are not unfair or unreasonable when they are given sufficient information to grasp a situation clearly. Misunderstandings and strikes very often are the outcome of ignorance—for which employers are unfrequently are solely to blame.

* * *

Let the heads of all our business enterprises utilize annual meetings this year as occasions for laying before their stockholders, their workers, and the public in general, full, frank, fearless, clear-cut statements of fact, and then let them see to it that their statements are given the most adequate publicity.

In foreign countries the statements made at annual company meetings are published in full as advertisements in newspapers and business periodicals. Only a few American companies have thus far adopted this excellent educational plan, although you may have noticed that leading Canadian enterprises not only do this at home but to some extent in American publications.

After all, if there can be said to be any panacea for the troubles that afflict us, that panacea is education.

BIG GAINS BY A NUMBER OF INDUSTRIALS

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

The New York market finished strong, many stocks selling at their highest for the day in the last hour. There were big gains by a number of issues, but the greatest strength was displayed by a few industries. Woolworth was a late feature, rising more than six points to its highest for the year. Oils, steels and rails advanced in the afternoon. U. S. Steel was up more than a point before the close. Lima Locomotive was in demand. Equipment. Trading was active, approximating 600,000 shares. Call money fell to 5 per cent. Like the weak in the foreign exchange market, owing to the resignation of the Italian Cabinet.

Prices were higher in the second hour and the market was strong at noon. A number of specialties had made large gains. Cluett Peabody went up seven and Phillips Jones nine points. Sugars were leaders for awhile. Cuba Cane preferred, American Sugar, Punta Alegre and Manati advancing from more than one to four points. Kresge was a strong stock. Oils, motors and steels were stronger at midday. During the afternoon standard Oil of New Jersey climbed eight points and held most of the gain. Rails were quiet and seemed to lag in the session. Electric Storage Battery increased its gain to six points late in the session. United Fruit moved up nearly a point. Call money opened at 5 1-2 per cent. Foreign exchange rates were higher at the start in most instances. Demand sterling started at $4.29¾, but soon lost most of the gain.

STRONG TONE AT START.

The tone was strong at the start and this was due chiefly to a resumption of pool activities in a number of issues. Trading had volume and scope. But price changes averaged small at the outset. Amerada sold up three points and Hudson while National Enameling advanced nearly four points at once and was soon up nine points. General Electric opened with a fractional gain, which it soon increased to four points. Texas Co. a slight reaction for some issues during the first hour owing to profit taking. But the market was strong at the end of that period. Among stocks showing from one to more than two points at the opening: Electric Storage Battery, Gulf States Steel, American Locomotive, Mexican Petroleum, Amerada, Atlantic Gulf, Bethlehem B, Utah Copper and Punta Alegre. Sumatra was weak, having recorded more than a point.

SHORT COVERING HELPED.

Short covering contributed to the first hour advance. Another influence was the completion of the Genoa conference, which, in the main, Wall Street is suited by its achievements. The upshot of the conference, as an exchange was a sentimental factor favoring a rise in security quotations. As hoped for, the immediate result was a rise in discount rate of the New York Federal Reserve Bank was not entertained the board of directors of the bank on the matter was not disappointing. The Bank of England rate remains unchanged. The heavy oversubscriptions to U. S. Treasury notes shows how much rich cash is lying in this country. But money plentitude is not reflected by the call rate. Its advance to 6 per cent. on Wednesday was credited to calling of stock loans because of the big subscription to the Treasury certificates and February 1 settlements. Loans to the amount of $50,000,000 were called up to afternoon, it is stated. But for all that brokers are said to have had plenty of money for the stock market and the amount left unloaned and in their hands after the exchange closed is reported to have approximated $2,000,000.

Chicago Grain Market

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Feb. 2.—The cotton market opened barely steady, but first prices were 8 to 18 points lower, owing to liquidation, selling by spot houses and Liverpool and local traders. There was support early from New Orleans and the trade. At the end of fifteen minutes the list was barely steady and about 10 points net lower. Opening prices were: March, 16.72; May, 16.65; July, 15.91; October, 15.80; December, 15.68.

SHYSTER FINDS NEW FIELD IN COMMERCE

Business Casualties Have Produced New Class of "Ambulance Chasers"

By RICHARD SPILLANE

New York, Feb. 2. — Ambulance chasers of business is the name now applied to that class of lawyers specializing in bankruptcies, reorganizations and creditors' committees. The large number of business casualties in the last year has given unusual opportunity for lawyers who specialize in corporation or partnership matters and some of them are alleged to have developed organizations to scout for cases and resort to practices which brought to the attention of the Bar Association might lead to disbarment.

In effect they do what the shysters who employ men to follow every ambulance call do. At the first rumor of a concern being in financial trouble they find who the creditors are and line them up for action.

The probability of the passage of the soldier's bonus bill has chilled many of the main effect.

"What's the use," they ask. "Taxation is so heavy now that it is destructive of initiative. If a man has enough to live comfortably he might as well retire and let others take up the burden."

Added to this sort of talk is more to the effect that a large fund has been raised to put through the soldier bonus bill, and the prominent lawyers of America is quoted as authority for the statement that two of the men employed in the office have been assessed $80 each on this account.

* * *

Whatever the sins of omission of the Hylan administration, that of neglect in street cleaning would not seem to be one of them. Lower Manhattan is remarkably clean, considering the recent heavy snowstorm. From the appearance of Broadway you would not know the city had had a heavy snowstorm a few days ago. Armies of men worked night and day to get rid of the snow and ice and did a remarkably good job.

Philadelphia has been congratulating itself on the way Director Caven and his men performed their heavy task. They are entitled to a lot of praise, but I'm not sure that anywhere near doing the wonders achieved here in Manhattan.

But New York will groan when it sees the bill.

Daniel C. Reid predicts a slow, steady improvement in business this year, to be followed by a long, substantial and broad expansion of trade and industry that we have known. He believes not only Americans will know far greater business, but the whole world will share it. The needs of the world are increasing greatly by the war. Mankind has come to look for more of creature comforts and will need more of them.

Articles previously considered luxuries or semi-luxuries are becoming more and more necessities. Many have not, he thinks, come to know how deeply the world has been stirred by the war and how far reaching it changed the outlook on life of all the peoples of the earth.

Neither do they believe we have appreciated the progress that has been made toward readjustment. We magnify reports of trouble, but get little of reports of progress.

He looks for a demand for goods of all kinds and characters within a few years that will tax the industrial capacity of the country.

Reid's view is all the more striking when compared with that of the men who see no good in anything because because taxes are high and probably will be higher, and because they do not think the rewards today compensate them for the risks and the worries they have to endure.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Activity in the stock market shifted to new groups, and certain issues among the leathers, coppers and railroads, in addition to a few specialties among the rails and industrials, furnished the features of the market. Third Avenue and Manhattan Elevated were freely bought on predictions of a termination of the B. R. T. receivership within a few months. There was heavy buying of Interborough Rapid Transit bonds, as well as certificates of deposit. The strength in some of the leather issues was encouraged by the belief Johnson Report showing about $1,500,000 more profit than in 1920. The upward movement in the coppers was due almost entirely to short covering in a narrow professional market.

ALTHOUGH the general impression in the Street made by the report of the U. S. Steel Corporation for the fourth quarter was favorable, the figures had no marked effect. There was reports a larger amount of new construction work in prospect, with a healthy volume of buying for the purpose of replenishing stocks. There is, however, a further downward movement in prices.

Specialties continue to furnish the wide price movements and the features were Gulf States Steel, Davison Chemical, American Ice and Electric Storage Battery. Firmness was displayed by both cotton and grain.

With the resignation of one of the leading members of the agricultural bloc, Wall Street is hoping that the politics and gallery play in the legislative policy of Congress. To this extent there is an improvement in sentiment, so far as it is influenced by Washington developments.

* * *

THE stock of Butterick Publishing Company, which has been advancing slowly for several weeks, made a new high for the movement. It is understood that the accumulation by certain influential interests has been completed. The company had an exceptional year during 1921, and there is reason to believe that at the meeting scheduled for February 15, a dividend at the rate of $4 annually will be declared.

SHORT covering apparently is the only support in American Sumatra Tobacco. The selling is largely for liquidation. The financial community assumes that when the directors meet February 15 the present dividend will be passed. It is understood that there are scale buying orders in quantity from 25 down on the common stock.

THE late rally in the market was led by U. S. Industrial Alcohol. The same firms which were buyers below 40 were buyers above 50. A well informed quarters it is suggested that new trade arrangements in the making will greatly increase the company's business, and which may have a far reaching effect on the world distribution of alcohol.

IN some conservative quarters the day to day transactions are being watched closely for indications of readjustment of prices sold three years ago. Some of these observers feel certain that the character of the buying in the stocks of railroad stocks as well as in some of the leading issues in the speculative rails is accumulation for powerful financial interests. They see no indication yet of such accumulation in the industrial list, although it is understood that in many issues there are substantial buying orders a few points below the market.

THE proposed steel mergers have gotten on the nerves of the trading element. President Block of the Inland Steel Company was reported today as saying that negotiations are in progress, but that no definite statement can be made until after a meeting of the executives of the several companies with bankers has been held. This meeting is scheduled tentatively three weeks hence.

BEFORE the opening word was spread broadcast that Gulf States Steel would be advanced to 80 before the end of the day. Traders bought this stock early on its opening advance to 78¾, pushing it to 79¾ during another point to 76, the movement died, and when these traders sold stock the price declined rapidly to 70¾. Some short covering at the close resulted in a rally.

CURE IN EUROPE SEEN AS U. S. REMEDY

Normal Conditions Over There Will Aid Business Here, Evans Declares

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—If Europe were cured we should be cured. That is the conviction of all having any considerable knowledge of economic affairs after this long period of education by the unfortunate course of events. Therefore cure Europe. Therefore go to the Genoa conference. Therefore be interested in any method that we should have a representative at the conference," says a Chicago banker specializing on international affairs.

We may dismiss everything but our own interest, if you please, no longer indulging in these world benevolences that the cynic tells us are founded on that inasmuch as Europe is the source of our trouble it is only in the place to begin operating a remedy.

MADE BIG BEGINNING.

We have indeed made a pretty big beginning in our large loans to European countries in the course of trade but perhaps we have begun at the wrong end.

Difficult as the restoration of something like normal conditions appears, it is not beyond the genius of men who have gone into the subject carefully to be impossible. The way has been pointed out by the authors of certain recent books who have gone into the matter during a great troughness but not even their leadership is necessary.

In Berlin the subject of repudiating the debt expressed by the currency, or scaling it down, is hardly spoken of. It is the common conviction that the currency will repudiate itself or scale itself down, that is, that it will become worthless.

Extending this idea in one degree and another throughout countries similarly situated in financial way one source of our trouble will be removed.

Then will what happen a conference or other means of reaching a definite conclusion might hasten this process and bring to life a new currency which would be stable.

But there would be no sense in letting the currency go to nothing if further issues of bills were to be made to pay necessary means of the government. It would, therefore, be necessary to provide that the income of the governments shall be at least as great as the outgo.

It is quite conceivable, however, that with proper pressure placed on these countries by the United States they could be achieved. Pressure should be made also for such a reduction in the reparations that Germany will be actually bled to death.

Who is this United States that arrogates to itself the function of telling Europe what they shall do which were in existence long before this government came into place on the maps? It is a young nation, with modern ideas, which is in a position to look on the old world and its children to mend their ways—yes children, but in their second childhood and deeply affected with senility.

WOULD WAIVE CREDIT.

This part young nation would waive any credit for trying to set straight the world and simply assert its own rights and interests accompanied by a threat to withhold from these offenders the pecuniary support that it only could provide.

Interesting bills aimed 4.29 and continental bills also up are to be taken as evidence, conditions have improved more or less chaotic, but so far as the continent is concerned the gain is a beginning and started with the whole mass of misfortune.

That there is a way out, however, seems more than a reasonable inference. With the cutting down of currency liability and reparations and reduction in government expenses plus some increase in taxation, a change comparable with that in the United States after the Civil War is among the possibilities. In view of such a change it would seem that the country would ignore objections now in the minds of our executive department and have its word at the Genoa conference.

FIRM TONE TO THE BOSTON MARKET

Prices Advance on the Local Exchange, While Curb List Shows Improvement

The Boston market had a firm start and was strong all the morning. But it was narrow from the opening, when most issues were unchanged. Trading was confined to a comparatively few issues. John T. General Electric advanced 2 and American Sugar 3, while point or more gains were made by Boston & Maine A, International Cement, Punta Alegre and John T. Connor. Atlas Tack dropped 1¾.

The good tone was retained in the afternoon. Eastern Steamship was the feature, soaring 3½ to a new record high. Point or more gains were shown by Island Creek, United Fruit, Boston & Maine preferred, St. Mary's Land, Edison and Waltham Watch preferred. Boston & Maine A lost its morning gain.

CURB IMPROVED.

Tremendous Assets

Assets of a company are the assurance of substantial worth and solid value behind a security.

Many companies whose stocks are traded on the New York Curb Exchange are backed by tremendous assets, running into millions of dollars.

45 of these companies have assets in excess of $5,000,000. The combined total assets of three of these companies alone are more than a billion dollars. There are ten of these companies whose assets aggregate over two billions of dollars.

YEAR'S PENSIONS GIFTS TO 24 HALIFAX BRIDES

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 2.—Wedding presents are being dispensed by the Canadian government. This was revealed today when the Halifax Relief Commission, appointed to administer funds appropriated by the government after the disastrous explosion of a munition ship in the harbor in December, 1917, made public a report of disbursements. This report showed twenty-four widowed in the explosion and fire had re-married, thereby forfeiting their pensions. In such instances a year's pension was given the bride.

CHEF CHESTER L. PRIOR DIES AT PROVIDENCE

Providence, Feb. 2.—Chester L. Prior, famous originator of the Field's Point chowder and the Rhode Island clam bake, is dead at his home here. His secret recipe for the chowder was sought after by chefs and hotel wives all over New England. For eight years he had served as chef at the Oakland Beach Yacht Club, while for twenty years he was chef at the club at Field's Point.

With No Law To Stop You What Would You Do Tonight?

Women . . cafes . . banks . . riches in homes and shops . . .
Take what you want—
Would you be home . . . or with your sweetheart? . . .
How about those secret wishes? . . . those half-thoughts that quiver and jump within you? . .
Take all! Take all!
There was such a day! . . .
In a great city—the smartest city . . and the wickedest . . .
No law! . . and everyone doing what he or she wanted to . . .
They drank . . . and such drinking!
There was passion . . . but there was also faith!
Bad women . . . and beautiful—but there were good women . . . even more beautiful.
Oh that mad day!
Her little love-heart brimming with sweetness . . .
For her blind orphan sister . . . for all the world.
The third man kissed her—Danton, a nation's hero . . . and they threatened his life!
Love! Laughter! Madness without limit! . . .

See it Feel it Tremble with it
Lose yourself in it Profit by it

Just as those people did in Paris as shown in that enchanting and seizing last act in
D. W. Griffith's hurricane of hypnotic action at the Tremont Theatre, "Orphans of the Storm."

Meeting of Trustees and United Improvement Association May Add to Public's Information

The meeting between the public trustees of our street railway system and the members of the United Improvement Association is a healthy affair. We believe that the representatives of this organization will tap the wells of the trustees' knowledge and will obtain from them the information which they will know how to dispense to the public.

The Boston American notes that the president of the organization opened the conference with the suggestion that it ought to be seriously considered whether or not too much money was being spent for reconstruction. In other words, he wanted to know whether or not a great deal of the money now being spent in rebuilding the road could not be spent in reducing the carfare more rapidly. It is a pertinent question.

More than three years ago Mr. MacFarland, counsel for the Boston American, was appointed on a special committee by the Mayor to investigate and report on the condition of the street railway system. In Mr. MacFarland's dissenting report he called attention to the very large sums of money which were being spent to rejuvenate the road, and expressed a doubt whether the rejuvenation program ought to be so hurried. But he was by no means certain that the trustees were wrong, for a dilapidated railroad is terribly expensive to operate, and it might well be that the most economical course was to spend freely in order to get the road rebuilt as soon as possible so that it could be run as economically as possible in the shortest time. This might be the quickest way to reduce the fare. It is a matter of judgment.

The suggestion of Mr. Merrick that the trustees publish every month a statement concerning the operation of the street railways which is intelligible to the ordinary man or woman is good. If Mr. Jackson explained to Mr. Merrick why the rebuilding of the Boston Elevated is not going to "fatten the pockets" of anyone, the newspaper accounts did not give his explanation. This is a pity, for the public ought to understand the situation under the law and to be made to realize that the stockholders will get no increased income from their property by the rebuilding of the road. The benefits all come to the public, unless, of course, after the road has been rebuilt there should be those wicked enough to try to turn it back to the old stockholders or to some new gang of promoters.

The character of some of the politicians who are making a business of attacking the public management give some ground for suspicion that there is a conspiracy afloat to work up public sentiment against the public management so that it will receive favorably a scheme to turn the property back to private interests.

Northcliffe Good Reporter

And Lloyd George Reads His Reports

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

In Lord Northcliffe, England has a very valuable reporter, traveling around the world, examining the British Empire and telling the government at home what is the matter with it, and with the imperial policy, in spots.

Fortunately for England, Northcliffe does not depend on the attention of the government. He has in England millions of readers of his own—as W. R. Hearst has in the United States—and can plant his ideas without asking anybody's help or permission.

The warning that Northcliffe sends from India will not be lost on Lloyd George, although he and Northcliffe are enemies.

Luckily for England, it has in Lloyd George a manager with an open mind, just as it has in Northcliffe a reporter that sees clearly and describes bluntly.

Northcliffe warns England that the Moslems, fighting followers of the fighting Mohammed, must be taken into consideration in all Indian and Eastern affairs, including the affairs of Turkey.

His recommendation that the Mohammedans be allowed to keep their "Sultan" as religious boss and keeper of the holy places is probably wise.

When men think enough of their religion to fight for it, the best, simplest plan is to respect that religion, no matter how foolish it is. That is the easiest way to manage the enthusiasts. Alexander knew it when he bowed down and worshipped Egypt's sacred ox.

Easy to Borrow $25,000,000

Just Change Yourself Into a Railroad

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul borrowed twenty-five million dollars from the government, one of those hasty borrowings that were so easy in the war. The money is due next March, but the government has arranged to extend the loan for five years. That's a comfortable way of financing. If the railroad went to the bankers, they would pay 7 or 8 per cent., get about ninety cents on the dollar, and be owned body and soul.

Question for the taxpayer: If the government, which means the people, is good enough to finance railroads, why is it not good enough to own them? Almost anybody can run a business with the government to supply money, twenty-five millions at a time.

New Editor of the Monitor

Willis J. Abbott an Able, Forward Looking and Experienced Journalist

We are glad to learn that Willis J. Abbott is to be editor of the Christian Science Monitor. Mr. Abbott is an able, forward looking, experienced journalist.

We may rest assured now that this important organ of a great religious movement will be restored to its self-respect and cease to be prostituted to British propaganda purposes.

Yet Mr. Abbott will undoubtedly preserve the Monitor's editorial policy of giving the news of the uninfluential, if it was important news, as much consideration as the news which favored the more powerful interests.

New Art Laws in France

PARIS, Feb. 2.—Of interest to American collectors and dealers is the new French law on the exportation of works of art which replaces the 1920 law, much criticized, forbidding such exportation.

As a result of the 1920 law art auctions in Paris became deserted by American dealers, many of whom moved their offices to Brussels and London, and Paris lost its reputation as centre of the art auction world, held since the Second Empire. The new law is calculated to remedy this state of affairs.

Art. 30: The law of August 31 1920, forbidding the exportation abroad of objects of art, is hereby abrogated.

Art. 31: Excluded from the exoneration provided in Article 72 of the law of June 3, 1920, and subject therefore to the tax of 10 per cent. edicted by Articles 59 and 63 of that law, affairs applying to the sales by antiquaries on their own account of curiosities, antiquities, old books, furniture and objects of collection, also sales of paintings, pastels, designs, original sculpture, engravings and old stamps.

Art. 37: In case of public sale of curiosities, antiquities, pantings, etc., 1 per cent. on the value will be levied to the profit of the fund for historical monuments.

The law, therefore, re-establishes the liberty of exportation of objects of art and suppresses the 15, 20 and 25 per cent. taxes under the old law.

On the other hand, the tax of 10 per cent. on business transactions which hitherto was not applied to art sales now is applied to them.

The new law marks the triumph of eighteen months' endeavor by Edouard Jonas, president of the Syndicate of Curiosities and Fine Arts, powerfully aided by Duveen Brothers, Jacques Seligman and other large American dealers.

"Island Universes"

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE most astonishing discoveries now being made in astronomy relate to the most distant regions of the visible creation. In fact, they bear upon the question whether there is only one "universe," consisting all objects within the range of our observation, or many "island universes," one of them being our own stellar system, marked out by the glazy or Milky Way. The first mentioned view is that of Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard Observatory; for the second, which is of older fate, though yet recent, H. D. Curtis of the Allegheny Observatory has lately appeared as protagonist.

Curtis regards the spiral nebulae as representing star islands in space, foreign to ours; Shapley holds that the spiral nebulae as well as the globular star clusters are subordinate, or attendant, parts of our aggregation. Neither, however, pretends to set a limit to space itself, or to the number of unknown systems that it may contain.

The Shapley Hypothesis

Shapley does not deny that there may be other "universes" far outside our own, but he thinks that they are not within our range of vision, and particularly that the spiral nebulae are not some of them. In order to include within our galactic system these objects and the globular star clusters, which are also very distinct, he expands the probable size of the visible universe (all our own system, though made up of diverse constituents) to ten times the diameter that Curtis is willing to assign to it.

In a sentence, according to the Shapley hypothesis, the diameter of the whole galactic system, the only system of whose existence we have visual or photographic evidence, is of the order of 300,000 light-years.

According to the other hypothesis the diameter is at the most not over 30,000 light-years, while the spiral nebulae ("island universes") resemble our own system and are distant from 500,000 to 10,000,000 light years. Shapley, on the contrary, regards the spiral nebulae as probably truly nebulous in constitution, and driven away by some repulsive action from the galaxy of stars. The arguments on both sides are of fascinating interest, but I am not going to detail them here. They may be found summed up by Messrs. Shapley and Curtis themselves in Bulletin No. 11 of the National Research Council. But some facts have just come to light concerning one of the most remarkable of the spiral nebulae which may be considered to have an important bearing upon the subject. In Contribution No. 213 of the Mount Wilson Observatory, Adriaan Van Maanen describes the results of careful measurements of the position of eighty points in the spiral nebulae "Messier 51," sometimes called the "whirlpool nebula." These points are included in two photographs of the nebula, one taken in 1910, the other in 1921, or eleven years apart, and the motions that they have undergone in the interval are revealed by the measurements.

Like a Huge Pinwheel

If the reader can see a reproduction of a photograph of this nebula, which has often been printed in recent astronomical publications that ought to be found in any large public library, he will get a more vivid sense of the meaning of Van Maanen's revelation. The measurements show unquestionably that the great nebula is turning in a plane about at right angles to our line of sight. In the photographs it resembles a gigantic fiery pinwheel, spinning with great velocity, one large fragment having apparently been whirled off from the central mass around which it has made a complete turn, while continually retreating from it in a spiral curve.

The result of the measurements is, in brief, to show that the whole mass appears to be turning around its centre, but that the points employed for measurement are moving outward along the spiral arms, so that it is not a pure outward motion. The rotational component of the motion indicates a rotation period of about 45,000 years.

Similar rotational velocities have been indicated in two other spiral nebulae, and they seem to support the Shapley hypothesis, for if those nebulae are other galaxies comparable in size with ours, the linear velocities corresponding with such a rotation period would be physically inconceivable.

Berlin Without Taxi Cabs

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—Berlin has been taxiless for a fortnight as the plutocrats who preside at the wheels of these vehicles are still holding out for a twenty-five-fold rise in prices and the repeal of a 10 per cent. head tax required of them by the city.

With the streets swept clear of taxis it is possible to obtain a clearer picture of the situation, as far as private autos are concerned. These vanished completely during the war and only began to make their reappearance in 1919. But as permissions were difficult to obtain, the cost of buying and running a machine was practically prohibitive, except for war profiteers.

During the next year 3,594 private cars were in operation, a number that has now increased to 7,255. These figures will seem insignificant to Americans, as according to statistics, every tenth person in the United States owns a private car.

To possess a private car in Germany even before the war was considered as especial badge of distinction to be achieved only by royalty, Silesian nabobs or antitled plutocrats. In other words, the automobile always was, and is now more than ever, as article of luxury, and any German-American revisiting his old home may be sure of making a "bomb effect" when he speaks casually of his "auto," even though this be only the latest flivver model.

The most noticeable feature of the post-war automobile production is the preference shown to the small car. Whereas in 1914 54 per cent. of the entire output averaged 45 H. P., the preferred speed is now 30 H. P. On the other hand, the cars have increased in luxuriousness and the limousines of the Mercedes and Benz make often display interior fittings of golden-brown mahogany, dove-grey Swedish birch, with cushions of light gray or light green morocco.

NOT CRUEL

"Don't you know you shouldn't sleep with a dog in the same bedroom with you? It's unhealthy!"

"Oh, the dog is used to it by this time."

GIRL WISER THAN HER MOTHER WAS

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1921, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

KATE'S stopped worrying.

Also, she's stopped scheming and planning and getting invitations where she wasn't wanted—and giving parties to people she didn't like—and she looks almost like a new woman.

When she was in grammar school she had to stay after school for getting so many notes—and answering them.

When she was in high school—well, high school was just one round of beaux for Kate. She believed in having a good time and in being popular, and pretty and fascinating.

She was not delighted to think Katharine was a girl and could be dressed up and decorated and made a delightful doll of.

Child's Beauty Didn't Last

And Kate dressed little Katharine in the darlingest pink and blues and rose colors, with big bows in her hair, and all her dimples and both of her knees showing. And everyone said, she's another Kate—and Kate was perfectly delighted.

But when Katharine was ten, and began to lose her baby teeth, it was different.

She lost her dimples, too, and she was too tall and scrawny to wear rompers any more—so if she still had chubby knees, no one ever suspected it.

"It's the awkward age," said Kate, apologetically. "She'll soon grow out of it."

But she didn't—she grew into it.

And then she had to wear glasses, and her hair wasn't curly any more, and altogether, little Katharine was just a nice, wholesome, sensible, plain, rather uninteresting girl.

Nice Surprise for Mother

The night that Katharine was a bewildered fur for three dances in succession, Kate's heart broke.

And when Katharine said she wanted to do some work in the free kindergarten, her mother cast her eyes upward, sighed and gave it up—for good.

She had met him at the kindergarten—he was interested in clinics for babies—and he liked Katharine and Katharine liked him—and they're going to be married. And he's the best catch in town. And Kate can't get over it. She simply can't. It's all she can do to keep from asking him what on earth he sees in Katharine. And every time the distinguished man looks at Kate, he seems to know what she's thinking and there's a good-humored twinkle in his eye. He told me the other day that Katharine was such a relief after all the empty-headed beaux he'd met in society.

To the Editor

Help the Children

Editor Boston American:

Two little girls, twins of 9, on their way to the Boston Dispensary, where all our children are examined and treated, came to the office a few days ago. It was hard to believe that they were the same children who just one month before, were poorly clothed and undernourished, had come from a miserable, cold, foul-smelling house, dominated by a cruel father and a disinterested stepmother. In one week's time in a good home each of these children had gained two pounds and the general marked improvement has continued.

As they sat in the office, playing with their dolls, they were totally unaware of the existence of a Children's Aid Society. The nurse, who was to accompany them to the Dispensary and who visits them in the foster home, is their newly-found aunt. They do not know that she bears the same relation to all our other children with whom she keeps in close touch.

The future of many just such children as these depends upon the receipt of funds from friends who have assisted us in the past and from others who realize the benefit to humanity through helping a child.

LAURA I. LEIGHTON,
Extension Secretary Children's Aid Society.

STRETCHING TIES, NOT BREAKING THEM

By Dr. Charles Fleischer.

THE chain may lengthen, but it never parts.

That was the exquisitely tender sentiment expressed by Oliver Wendell Holmes in his consoling poem called "Homesick in Heaven." If you think the reading of poetry a "high-brow" dissipation, test yourself on those sweet and simple lines and taste a new satisfaction.

Dr. Holmes therein undertakes to teach that, in the spirit-world, the loves which hold us here on earth are resolved in a universal mutual love.

Their fest may leave the earth, but not their hearts; the chain may lengthen, but it never parts! They are taught the greater truth of universal love.

The writer was recently reminded of a painting which he had seen at the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893. This canvas so impressed his youthful imagination with its appeal to his sympathies that he has never forgotten Hovenden's picture, "Breaking the Home Ties."

Humble Cottage

This showed a humble cottage interior, a weeping mother playing the chief role in the commonplace, but always touching, drama of sending her boy out into the world to make his own career.

That is the touch of true art, to make the individual experience typical of the general experience, so that the particular canvas will talk in terms of the common life.

The other night we dined with friends who had just sent away their boy of twelve to a private school. The boy had telephoned from his distant habitation, showing plainly and pathetically that he was homesick in his new heaven.

The chain had lengthened, but it could not part! The boy querulously queried why he had been sent away from his family. His devoted mother used the opportunity to teach him that it was done not that he should love his home less, but that he might learn to include in his home and family all the world.

Recently, Boston and the country were startled by the "sale" of unemployed men on Boston Common. The picturesque salesman was later presumed to be discredited by the discovery that he was not living with his wife and daughter, but by his desertion was compelling their self-support.

As for himself, he justified his wider, humanitarian activities by the example of Jesus. You will recall the story. Jesus was talking to a group, when some one came in and announced that his mother and brothers had come to see him. But Jesus asked who is his mother and who are his brothers?

Then he stretched his hands towards his disciples and said: "Behold my mother and my brethren!"

Typical Incident

One may or may not choose to take that evident allegory literally, but certainly the incident is another illustration of the all-inclusive love of Jesus.

This is typical of all great lovers.

And this is the growing tendency of humanity. Not that we are likely, within any imaginable time, to give up the less inclusive loves of family, sect, party, group, and nation. But, certainly, we are tending to supplement these with the larger and including love of all the human race.

When Tom Paine and, later, William Lloyd Garrison said, in practically the same words, that the world was their country, and all mankind their countrymen, no one doubted their American patriotism.

And so, with all his universalism, Jesus insisted that he came but to bring back the lost sheep of the house of Israel. And, with all his superiority to the traditional religious law, he announced that not one jot or tittle of it would pass away until it had been fulfilled.

All these examples are here assembled only in order to indicate the possibility of harmonizing the finest love and loyalty and devotion with the more inclusive spirit of cosmopolitanism and humanitarianism.

And, especially of the home it may be said, as Brutus said of Rome and Caesar, "not that I love Caesar less, but that I love Rome more!"

Whether they are home ties or Ro metics, or patriotism or loyalty to one's religious group—they may all be stretched without breaking.

True love makes you kind to all mankind.
